LEGISLATORS PUT OFF BILLS AS THEY SIGHT VACATIONS

Don't Want Business to Interfere With Chance to Leave Capitol

Madison—(P)—Three of the important measures on Friday's assembly program were laid over until next week by members anxious to get away on a holiday that preceded their usual weekend adjournment, or professing incomplete knowledge of the measures.

The Koenig "bus bill" one of the important measures of the session an automobile common carrier regulation was laid over until Thursday, and a bill by the committee on education on school taxes was ordered put on the calendar for Wednesday.

The bill by Assemblyman Polewczynski, cutting down the number of years minors are required to attend vocational schools was put over until the next calendar day, which will be Wednesday.

A new bill was submitted by Assemblyman Doethel of Manitowish, limiting salaries to be paid presidents of domestic insurance companies doing mutual or participation business in Wisconsin to $35,000 per year.

After Assemblyman Hilt had argued for some time in favor of his bill, changing terms, salaries and requirements for county superintendents of education, it was killed. Passage had been recommended by the committee on education.

Fourteen bills were passed, including three recommended by the interim committee on the last legislature.

By Assemblyman Duncan, doing away with special counsel for state departments and turning all of this business to the attorney general.

When The River Broke Through Levee

Here is the result of a levee break—the town of New Madrid, entirely under flood water. A strip of levee still holding is shown to the right. This scene is typical of millions of acres and scores of towns throughout the Mississippi valley, where the Red Cross faces the greatest task it has had to undertake since the war.

PEACEFUL "BUGGY" RIDE CLIMAXES WILD LEGISLATIVE WEEK

Wisconsin Lawmakers Forget Animositities as They Start for Horicon

Madison—(P)—Starting with riotous sessions, split by factional disputes over the governor's special message to the legislature, Wisconsin's session ended the current legislative week with a peaceful "buggy ride" to Horicon.

The friction caused among a minority of the legislature by Governor Zimmerman's charges of "dilatory tactics" and "neglect of needed legislation," was apparent during Tuesday night's session of the assembly. Several members denounced the message. It met almost similar action in the upper house a few days before.

The tumult died down with the adoption of resolution expressing regret for the manner in which the assembly adjourned when a clerk started to read the governor's message last week.

Probable deficits or balances in the state's general fund also received the attention of the legislators after Governor Zimmerman's statement that a $3,000,000 deficit would exist. The statement was contradicted by Sol Levitan, state treasurer and Theodore Dammann, secretary of state. No accident was taken.

The much discussed and voted on "alum" bill appeared again in the lower house this week when motion to reconsider the vote, by which it was previously passed, carried. A tie vote on the measure which would compel manufacturers of baking powder to so label cans containing alum, resulted in its defeat.

The upper house passed the Schuman bill calling for the abolishment of the present state highway commission, to be substituted by a full-time commission of three members, all to be appointed by the governor.

Arbitration of the Mexican and Nicaraguan controversies was asked by the assembly in the passage of a resolution memorializing congress to take such action. Both houses engrossed and passed scores of bills.

THE COMPLAINT BOX

(The Post-Crescent invites its readers to register their complaints against abuses or unsatisfactory conditions with The Complaint Box department of this newspaper. These complaints will be placed before the proper authorities with the request that investigations be made and that proper remedial steps be taken. All communications must be signed with the name and address, not for publication, but as an evidence of good faith. Be sure your communications are so written that the nature of your complaint is readily understood.)

Editor Post-Crescent—There is a terrible situation existing in the dumping grounds on the south side of Appleton between Garfield and N. D. Villanovists. The property is private but everything including filth, ashes, tin cans and broken glass is deposited there and some is put on the sidewalk.

Even the entrance to the children's play ground is partly covered. Sometimes the odor from some of the decayed matter is very offensive. It certainly is not healthy for the children who play there. The property owner told me that he could sue the city for damages for permitting this condition. I wish you would merely pass by the spot then a complaint would not be necessary.

Steps to remedy this matter have been taken. It has been brought to the attention of L. F. Hackworthy, street commissioner.

The police have been told to be on the watch for people depositing rubbish there and anyone caught doing so will be arrested and fined. Mr. Hackworthy has taken steps to have this dump covered and raked smoothly and grass is to be planted there.

while discussion centered around numerous other measures. Senator Tensdale's cigarette tax bill met defeat in the upper house.

NEW FREIGHT CARS ARE PUT INTO USE

Approximately 25 Cars Are Ready for St. Paul Railroad Company

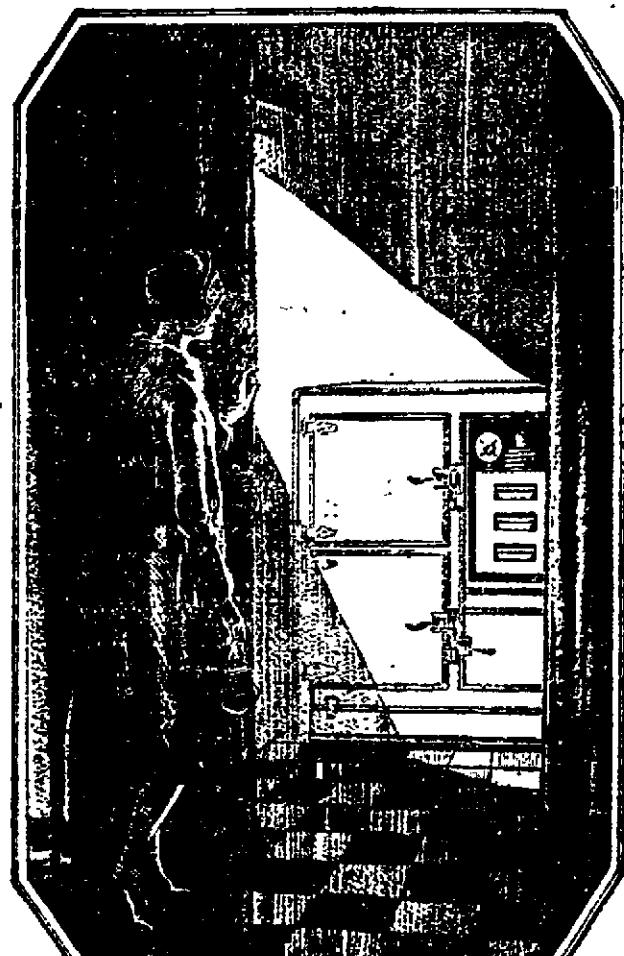

The first of the new steel freight cars built for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad began operating through Appleton the past week, according to A. W. Liese, local agent. The cars are part of an order of 50 being built for the company at Michigan City, Ind. About half of them have been completed and are being delivered as rapidly as they are finished.

They are of a new type, according to Mr. Liese, being built with an all steel frame with plank floors, sides and ends bolted to the steel framework. The roof is of steel, supported by trusses and double doors, exceptionally wide and high, give 12 foot clearance, which will be appreciated by shippers.

The inside length of the cars is 50.5 feet with a width of 9.1 feet and an inside height of 19 feet, giving a total cubic capacity of 4,671 feet. Its rated capacity is 30 tons and its load limit is 12,300 pounds. Each car weighs approximately 56,700 pounds.

How a Salaried Man Left a Large Estate

A railroad executive whose only income was his salary, wisely took out life insurance in order to leave an estate for his family.

Pinned to the policy was a letter advising his widow to consult with this company for protection when investing the money. She liked the way we handled her affairs and subsequently created a number of trusts for her grandchildren.

WISCONSIN WEATHER

Fair, followed by increasing cloudiness tonight and Sunday; not quite so cool; possibly frost tonight in southeast portion.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

High pressure over the central portion of the country this morning, with generally fair and cool weather. A trough of low pressure is developing over the Rockies, with an extensive center apparently crossing the southern passes. This is causing increasing cloudiness over the southern plains and carries a serious threat of more rain over the flood regions of the south. The advance of the "low" trough should cause slowly rising temperature in this section tonight and Sunday, with increasing cloudiness on Sunday.

Victor Voecks, who has been spending a 10-day vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Voecks, 716 E. Pacific-st., returned Monday to Watertown where he is attending Northwestern college. He was accompanied by his cousin, Lloyd Gorts of Adot, who visited the Voecks home during the vacation.

Slayer Wants Jurymen To Be Like Slain Husband

BY GENE COHN

Long Island City, N. Y.,—Twelve "good men and true"—that's the conventional description of a jury drafted to determine in a criminal court whether a defendant is to be punished, and if so, how.

But what a far cry it is back to the time when to qualify as jurors in a spectacular trial, men needed only to be "good and true"—nothing more! That thought must have come to you had you sat through the Ruth Snyder-Henry Judd Gray trial's earlier days.

WANTED: ALBERT SNYDER'S! Albert Snyder, slain and in his grave, is the very type of man Ruth Snyder and her lawyers would have accepted for the Snyder-Gray trial with a minimum of hesitation.

It was the Albert Snyder type for whom Mrs. Snyder and her attorneys were searching in those dragging hours when panel after panel appeared, only to be dismissed for this reason or for that. Home loving, family men! Men who like to putter in back yard garden and lead quiet, peaceful lives in the country! Men who are more-or-less patently respectable in one way or another the man she is accused of slaying.

An incredible situation, you say?

Not at all! Ruth Snyder knew her husband; knew his capacity for tolerance and understanding; knew the tender qualities and capacities for long suffering. That's the simple answer.

GRAY FITS HIS ROLE

How about Henry Judd Gray? It would seem that he long since has ceased to make much difference. To be sure the resigned little man who sits here day upon day, one leg thrown over the other, his gaze set stolidly and grimly ahead, is jointly charged. But this is going to be Ruth Snyder's trial, or she won't play. As far as she is concerned, Gray can take what's left. Gray fits his role splendidly.

To the Gray half of the defense, the kind of jurors finally chosen does not matter much. He will take what he gets, and hope that it isn't expressed in bolts of electricity.

SEX WINS ITS PLACE

Candid admission comes from the Snyder case that our changing codes have given sex, and the many ramifications that the term implies, a definite place in judicial procedure. Few observing men and women now underestimate the potency of this.

There is no hiding of the issue in this case. Ruth Snyder thinks so.

knows the type of men who most possibly would be disposed in her favor. She may be right or wrong. The newspapers have seen it; one sent Peggy Joyce, long-experienced, to survey the situation and tell what she thought. Another sent a playwright, whose studies in "feminine appeal" are based on many similar trials. There has been a deliberate "staging" in the matter of dress along with all the "sizing up" of ventriloquism.

NO BOON TO GRAY

As for Henry Judd Gray, the sex phase joins with the rest in leaving him all but out of the picture. What can Gray do or say to invoke sex philosophy in his behalf?

Gray sits dumbly by, in rather stolid surrender. If the jury is kind to Ruth Snyder, perhaps a few crumbs of leniency will fall to him too. Perhaps not. Gray will take what he gets.

Some wise-cracker remarked early in the proceedings: "What Judd Gray needs is not a lawyer, but a press agent."

Elected To Fraternity

Election of five members to Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary fraternity for men in journalism, was announced this week. The group includes two sophomores, John Walter of Green Bay and Arthur Mueller of Wausau, and three juniors, James Ford, of Oshkosh, and George Nierder of Plain, Ill.

MOTORCYCLE COP IS INJURED IN CRASH

Officer F. F. Arndt Receives Ruptured Hernia in Collision With Car

Motorcycle Officer F. F. Arndt suffered a hernia in a collision with a small touring car about 3:15 Saturday morning at the corner of S. Appleton and W. Lawrence-sts. He was taken to police headquarters in a taxicab, and later conveyed to St. Elizabeth hospital, where he was operated on about 11 o'clock.

Driving south on S. Appleton-st, he attempted to turn west on W. Lawrence-st, and collided with the car going east on W. Lawrence-st in front of the Smith Livery.

The handle bars of the motorcycle were broken and the front fork and front fender were bent.

The touring car, after stopping to determine the extent of the officer's injuries, started out again without learning the identity of the driver.

There was no license on the rear of the car, it was reported. Two ladders were strapped to the side.

CLAIMS AMERICA IS EXAGGERATING TROUBLE

The revolutionary war in China is not of as great importance as American people are inclined to believe, according to M. E. Serogy, Gabu, Hawaii, former resident of Menasha.

In a letter to Appleton friends, he encloses a front page headline clipped from the Appleton Post-Crescent reading "British, Yankees Ready to Shell City", and asks why this country is making a fuss over this minor trouble among the Chinese.

"China's mix-up is not what you people think it is," he said. "Why waste a lot of valuable ink and newspaper space, as well as the energy of the A. P.? The situation doesn't warrant it."

NO Government Without Education, Mentors Told

duces a common morale in thinking, it promotes international peace. It presents a rational conception of nationalism, it brings about a refinement of our governmental system.

Education should be made more universal to be of greater value, the speaker continued. He quoted John J. Pershing as attributing the large number of slackers in the World war to illiteracy in the country.

His emphasis on international friendship through the proper teaching of such subjects as geography and history. "Education must promote the spirit of international conciliation by awakening an intelligent, romantic, fraternal interest in other lands and in other peoples through pictures, literature and foreign language. Education must be based upon truth."

Mr. Crow described the state education in Germany, Yugoslavia, Poland, Denmark and Finland, and their value to the nations. He also gave a brief summary of the history of free education.

Playing with statistics is such dangerous business, Mr. Christofferson urged, that school budgets should be based upon real needs instead of on comparisons elsewhere.

As to our "inferiority complex," he said: "Our nationwide school business is capitalized at nearly six and one-half billion dollars and spends two and a half billions yearly to turn 2,000,000 young people into more effective citizens. It is no modest Wisconsin budget that expends $62,000,000 each year."

DIVORCES INCREASE
UNDER SOVIET RULE

Leningrad, Russia. (AP)—Trial marriages are becoming increasingly numerous throughout Russia, due to the abolition of all church and civil ceremonies.

In many instances here men and women were married one week, became tired of one another the next week, and promptly obtained divorces so second trials with other persons could be made.

During the short time the new Soviet marriage code has been in effect, the number of registered marriages in Leningrad alone has decreased 72 percent, while the number of divorces has increased by 80 percent, the daily average being about fifty-seven.

The sharp decline in marriages is attributed to the new regulations exempting newlyweds from registering their union with the state, common-law marriages being sanctioned. The increase in divorces is due to the ease with which unions can be dissolved.

The guardianship of children does not appear to be as serious a problem. For example, one woman, with five children applied for a divorce. Her husband made no protest.

"What shall we do with the children," asked the divorce clerk. "He can take the two boys," said the woman sharply, pushing the youths toward her husband. "They'll probably prove to be as big hooligans as he is. I'll take the three girls."

CITY MACHINERY SET UP FOR ANNUAL RUBBISH CLEAN-UP

Street Department Establishes Districts to Facilitate Work

Preparations for collecting rubbish during "Clean Up Week" from May 1 to 8, have been made by R. F. Hackworthy, street commissioner. Routes for the wagons have been laid out. Mayor A. C. Rule has formally dedicated that period as clean-up week from homes where it has collected during the winter months.

Appleton-st. is the dividing line for north and south districts. Four wagons will start early Monday morning and pick up rubbish on the streets east of Appleton-st. as far north as the railroad tracks and as far south as Lawrence-st. It is the intention of the street commissioner to collect rubbish in the business district first. The wagons will start at the west end of the streets and work east. After the streets have been cleaned east and west then the cross streets in this district, running north and south will be started.

After the east end has been completed work will start in the section between the railroad tracks and Lawrence-st. west of Appleton-st. and the wagons will work west on the streets running east and west and when these have been completed the cross streets will be next. After the business section has been cleaned, two wagons will take the territory south of the business district and two more will work on the streets north of the business district.

The rubbish will be dumped in ravines that are near to the territory in which the wagons are working. Only rubbish that has been placed in boxes or barrels will be collected. The department will not haul away ashes, Mr. Hackworthy warns.

Residents in the business district are warned to have their rubbish standing on the sidewalk by Monday morning and the outlying district will be started by Wednesday so all rubbish should be out by that time.

PUBLIC DEMAND IS ORCHESTRA STRENGTH

Little Symphony Started as Temporary Orchestra and Became Permanent

The New York Little Symphony orchestra which will play in Lawrence Memorial chapel Wednesday evening April 27 as the last number of the Community Artist series was organized merely as a temporary group to give a concert for the benefit of the American Red Cross in 1914 during the war. Its success was so overwhelming as to warrant continuation.

Since the pioneer venture by George Barrere, its leader, others have followed his lead and little symphonies have started up all over the United States. Some of these are fostered by public spirited citizens and in not a few cases by municipalities themselves.

"The little symphony" consists of the same instruments as the Barrere Ensemble with an additional trumpet, tympani and string choir. Thus it contains the same proportions as the large orchestra omitting only the trombone, tuba, battery, harp and several other instruments which would not blend in with the miniature group. The programs are given in such a department as captivates the audience to impart an entirely new character to the old works, critics have said.

Mr. Barrere has succeeded in bringing to light many of the subtle effects which are often lost in large orchestral performances. This is due not only to his combination of instruments and his skill in adapting them to the intimacy of chamber music proportions but also the programs which he chooses to give.

A REASONABLE DOUBT

There are some persons who believe that the movement of international proportions to prevent the execution of the convicted Massachusetts murderers, Sacco and Vanzetti, is the customary assault of radicals upon the integrity of American courts and American justice. Color is given to this opinion by the fact that Sacco and Vanzetti were both reds, and that the protests against their execution have come mostly from communists and other extremists. Lately, however, many men of prominence and standing, acting it is to be presumed without prejudice, have taken up the cause of these men in an effort to have them pardoned or their sentences commuted.

Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted six years ago of murdering two payroll messengers at South Braintree, Massachusetts. The murder was cold-blooded and singularly daring. The men were shot down in the principal street of the town in broad daylight, the murderers making a clean getaway with boxes containing nearly $16,000 in currency. There were many eye witnesses both to the shooting and to the escape of the bandits immediately afterward. A number of witnesses testified positively that Sacco and Vanzetti were members of the murder party and that one of them killed at least one of the victims. None of the witnesses knew either Sacco or Vanzetti, but identified them from memory on their apprehension some days later. There was circumstantial evidence as to the identity of the murder car. Watch was kept over this particular car, and when its owner and three other Italians called for it they were arrested. These included Sacco and Vanzetti.

Both men lied about themselves and their whereabouts on the day of the murder. There were other circumstances which the state emphasized as tending to establish after the crime "a consciousness of guilt," so that the evidence on which they were convicted was both direct and circumstantial. On the other hand, there were a number of eye witnesses who asserted positively that none of those in the murder car was either Sacco or Vanzetti. Alibis by numerous witnesses were established for both men, to prove that they were not and could not have been in South Braintree at the time the crime was committed. At certain points in the case, the conflict of testimony was irreconcilable. In others, the character of the witnesses and the evidence presented by the state seems to be discredited.

It is asserted in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti that they were arrested and prosecuted at a time when public opinion in Massachusetts was acutely aroused against radicals and when, largely in that state and at its instance, the federal government was engaged in deporting reds and undesirable aliens wholesale. Many crimes had been committed together with violation of property, and it is argued that in the inflamed atmosphere against radicalism the defendants could not and did not receive a fair trial. The supreme court of Massachusetts did not pass on the evidence or the credibility of witnesses; the trial judge and jury are the only ones who have pronounced the defendants guilty. A retrial was denied and the denial upheld by the supreme court, notwithstanding it is alleged much new evidence has been brought to light, and recent disclosures point strongly to the guilt of professional bandits known as the Morelli gang.

No one can of course pass intelligently or conscientiously on the guilt or innocence of these men without having actually heard the testimony of the court. Written records of evidence and explanations of counsel convey an incomplete picture of the trial. However, it seems to us that on the showing of facts reasonable doubt, perhaps more than reasonable doubt, exists as to their guilt. The fact that these men are reds should not be allowed to prejudice their lives, neither should justice in Massachusetts be intimidated by red threats of reprisal. Some of the partisans of Sacco and Vanzetti demand their pardon and liberation, but this is obviously going from one extreme to the other. It is an emotional demand, for they know nothing about the actual guilt or innocence of the men. We think the governor of Massachusetts would be well justified in commuting the sentences, pending a further investigation of the case and efforts to test the theory that the murders were committed by other parties. Enough doubt exists, notwithstanding the verdict of guilt by a jury, to take no chances on the execution of innocent men. It will be no miscarriage of justice in any event, and if it transpires later that their guilt is not established beyond a reasonable doubt they can be pardoned and set free.

MONEY AND JUSTICE

The granting by Judge Raymond of an order of mistrial upon motion of the defense counsel in the suit of Aaron Sapiro against Henry Ford for $1,000,000 damages for alleged libel illustrates afresh the difficulties of administering justice where a large sum of money is involved, or when one or more of the parties are immensely wealthy. The suit has been on trial for many weeks and has cost a large sum of money to the people of Detroit and to the principals. The mistrial was caused by one of the jurors, a woman, granting an interview discussing the case to a local newspaper. The interview and its publication were equally improper and, as the judge commented, constituted an interference by the public press with the function of the court. The newspaper is to be cited for contempt, which is as it should be. There are licenses which newspapers cannot take, and for which when taken they should be held accountable. It is another instance of that yellow journalism which has done so much to discredit the American press as a whole, and which is responsible for much misunderstanding, social and racial antipathy and obstruction of justice.

On the other hand, there have been instances in the Sapiro case which reflect upon the litigants themselves. Charges and countercharges have been made of attempts to fix jurors and to influence testimony and the verdict by the use of money. Too many trials take place in this country where similar charges are made, and such practices are established. It does not prove that such things occurred in the Sapiro-Ford suit, but the charges and suspicions are there. Money apparently does not hesitate to go to any extreme to corrupt politics, government and courts. It would be interesting to know just what disclosures a thorough investigation by the state of Michigan of the Detroit case would make. Whatever the facts, the truth is that a battle of money is a battle of money and seldom of justice.

OLD MASTERS

I fled Him, down the nights and down the days;
I fled Him, down the arches of the years;
I fled Him, down the labyrinthine ways
Of my own mind; and in the mist of tears
I hid from Him, and under running laughter,
Up visioned hopes I sped;
And shot, precipitated,
Adown Titanic glooms of chanced fears,
From that strong Feet that followed, followed after,
But with unhurrying chase,
An unperturbed pace,
Deliberate speed, majestic instancy,
They beat—and a Voice beat
More instant than the Fall—
"All things betray thee, who betrayest Me!"
—Francis Thompson: From "The Hound of Heaven."

TELL IT TO THE DEBATERS
Now that the debaters have settled the question about whether dandelions should be picked for anything besides greens, a few other super-issues have cropped up to the armers to wipe out. . . . A debate ought to be held to decide whether the better citizen, the man who can drink 22 glasses of milk or the one who can chew 100 sticks of gum at once. . . . Another moot question is stepping for men. One university student who stepped out in a pair was so stepped on that he felt like the threshold of a redoubled New York night club. . . . The girls, he says, have settled the issue about how long a dress should be. They ended the controversy by taking it up recently.

London is observing the 16th anniversary of the invention of the match. Mothers were making them long before that.

New York night clubs must close at 3 a. m. now. It is sought to relieve the traffic congestion for the madmen.

Hostile exercise is what a man gets on the golf course which he can't possibly win by beating a target.

New York is a place where a man from Florida can carry a cane.

There is a collection of the population law a few days. That should make the law more real.

One of the few saw the 50th anniversary free, and a building, so four years and pay to get in.

It is a fact that the law is to park.

ATTA BABY

Dear Dr. Brady:
I can hardly wait till the next day to read your daily articles of Personal Health Service, after I have finished with the one in hand. I think that they are just fine, and I believe in every one of them.

Some people think I am crazy the way I am bringing up my baby, by putting him out in the cold air, rain or shine, and by taking him out during cold weather. I do not wish to boast, but I doubt that a baby could be any healthier than mine is.

(Mrs. O. B.)

Mrs. O. B. is a young mother. There is always a chance to accomplish something if we can catch 'em young. The old fishwives and fossils are quite hopeless, and I am now resigned to this, though formerly it gave me much worry. Nowadays I don't worry a bit about the delusions of the old folk, but devote myself to the young 'uns exclusively.

Even our staid public health departments here and there are beginning to approve of some such bringing up as Mrs. O. B.'s baby is getting. In ten or twenty years more all of them will be advising what I have been advising for twenty years past. The old fishwives and fossils are dying off and a new generation is coming on. These young folks are more sophisticated and you can't hand 'em the old hokum about "avoiding drafts and exposure" without the risk of getting the laugh such nonsense deserves.

Of course Mrs. O. B.'s baby is healthier than the poor little hothouse infants whose mothers follow the fishwife's method. Fresh air and sunlight are even more essential for the well being of the young infant than they are for the health of older children.

I have reached the point where I don't care a hoot what any old fossil or fishwife thinks about my teachings—though this sometimes hurts my business, my present business. I look for much better business when the babies grow up and become readers and subscribers, hoping that the few who become advertisers will keep a kindly sentiment in their hearts for poor old Doctor Brady. But no kidding, it is a great feeling to meet a fine mother or father who exclaims, "Why, we brought up all our children on your plan—and look at them!" That makes looking at them a mighty pleasant thing.

Mrs. O. B.'s baby, out on the porch or in the driveway for his regular morning and afternoon nap or play, will be distinctly less likely to contract pneumonia, diphtheria, bronchitis, or other evil than the indoor type of infant, so I am optimistic about my future business, for I am an evolutionist and I believe in the survival of the fittest.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Fruit Sugar and Diabetes

I am 53 years of age, a housewife, and my doctor says he finds a small amount of sugar in the urine. Is it harmful for me to eat sparingly of fruit sweetened with cane sugar if plenty of water is taken at the same time? Is the natural sugar in fruit harmful? (E. G.)

Answer—Each individual with diabetes may take and utilize a certain amount of sugar daily. The defect must be that the diabetic must restrict the amount of sugar (or starch) to the maximum he or she can utilize. Your physician is the only person who can tell you just how much sugar you may safely or wisely take. It doesn't matter whether the sugar is in the form of cane sugar, fruit sugar, honey or what not. Nor does it matter how much water you may take along with the sugar.

More Light on Heavy Underwear

If it isn't too late to nominate peer pessimists, how about the benighted beggar who thinks T. B. is sure and certain if heaves are removed before June 1. (W. E.)

Answer—Does he still survive? This past winter was the first winter I have braved in my boyhood. I did not wear a hat in the half wool and fur for four days in January, but only because there were essential buttons on. Strange how strong the force wasn't a light an dairy costume at hand with the of habit—previous winters I have been dimly conscious that the heavy stuff was rather uncomfortable most of the time, yet I have worn it just because it was heavy underwear time. But never again. I am now a devotee of the light and airy, and the fundamental principle of hygiene which should guide us in this is: The less clothing one wears at any time with comfort the better his health. ## TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Miss Carrie E. Morgan left for California that morning where she was to attend the convention of the Women's federated clubs.

Mrs. Carrie Schultes and Mrs. Lucy Huettner entertained members of Karolina lodge and their husbands at a German supper in South Masons hall the previous evening.

Judge John Goodland that morning appointed David E. Reese to fill out the remainder of the unexpired term of his brother, the late Thomas Reese, as clerk of circuit court. The term was to expire Jan. 1, 1903.

May Spencer, a member of the local high school, was awarded first place in the annual contest of the Fox River Valley High school declamatory league the previous day. The fact was revealed that day when 19 American survivors and 15 men of other nationalities landed at Ymuden, Holland.

The manager of the Appleton office of the Western Union Telegraph Co. received information that employees of the company would receive pay while serving their country.

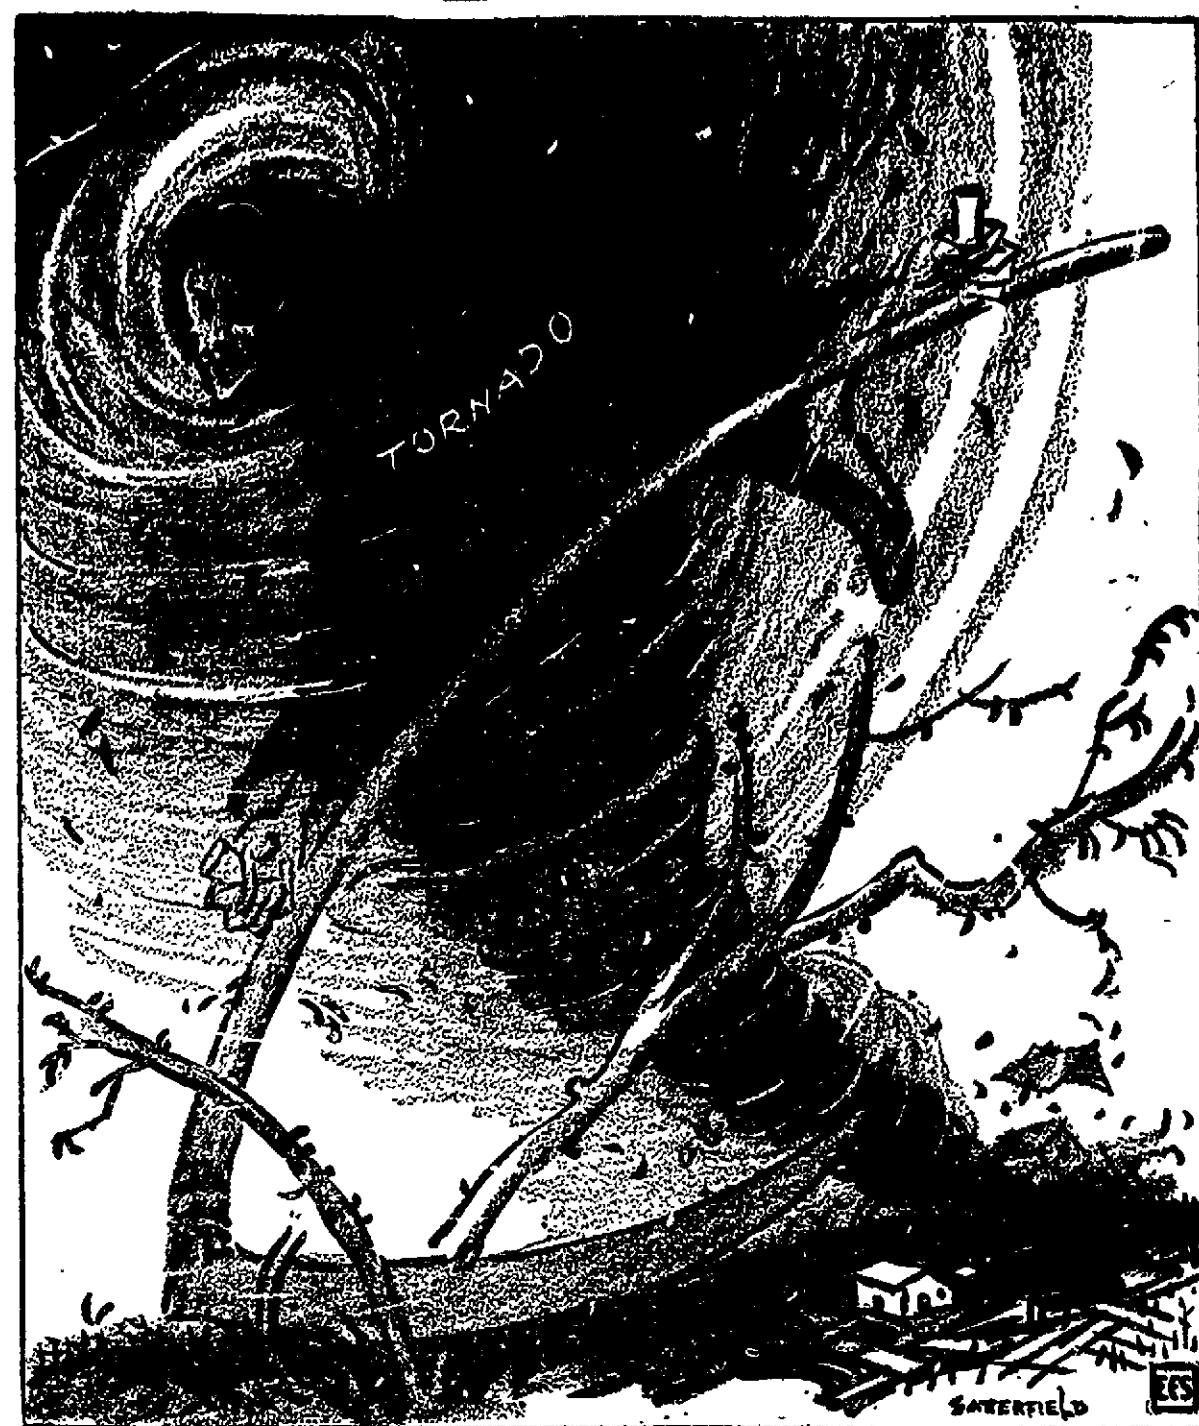

At a joint meeting of representatives of Appleton patriots under the previous Thursday evening, final arrangements for the proper observance of Memorial day were made and committees were appointed to take charge of the work. The chief speaker of the day was to be Attorney Humphrey Pierce.

Miss Mable Burke and Miss Grace Kane, instructors at the Industrial school were hostesses that afternoon at a luncheon and bridge in one of the rooms of the school on the second floor of the Post building.

Six Appleton girls left that morning on a 14 mile hike to Clifton. The hikers were Mildred Thoms, Helen Peterson, Dorothy Elmkeren, Marie Davis, Anna Callahan and Irma Wickert.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN MEET

Washington, D. C. From March 31 to April 2 the representatives of 26,000 university women will gather in Washington for the fifth annual convention of their national association. There will be about 500 of the delegates and they will include presidents, deans, and professors of more than a score of American colleges and universities, women of high rank in other professions and women who have not gone in for "careers."

Problems growing out of the widening sphere of women's activities in social, political, and economic fields will be discussed from different aspects at this three day's session of the American Association of University Women, it is announced. Women's progress and accomplishments in scholarship and scientific research, what they are doing and what obstacles they are encountering in business, and how the colleges and universities of the United States are meeting their requirements are some of the questions that will be considered.

A report of a survey made by the Association to determine the extent to which university women are entering business will be made by the committee on the economic and legal status of women, of which Mrs. Chase G. Woodhouse, of Washington, is chairman. Other special reports will cover such standards of promotion in college faculties, the coordination of women's interests, law schools, teachers' colleges, historical textbooks, and housing at colleges and universities.

Ada L. Comstock, president of Radcliffe College, will report on educational policies, Emily H. Dutton on college and university standards, Harlan James on legislation, Dr. Ella Lonn on recognition of colleges and universities, Ellen F. Pendleton on international relations, and Agnes L. Rogers on fellowships.

DETAILS OF THE PROGRAM

Educational problems will engage the attention of the Association the first day of the meeting, with the featured address by President Comstock. Pre-school, elementary, and adolescent education will be discussed at group meetings. President Cora Helen Coolidge, of Pennsylvania State College for Women, will preside at a conference of college presidents, deans and professors at which addresses will be delivered by Dr. Marion Kenworthy on "Understanding the College Girl as an Individual," and Dr. Arthur H. Ruggles, of Yale University, on "Mental Hygiene in Colleges." President Marion E. Park, of Bryn Mawr, will preside at a session for the discussion of modern trends education, with Dr. Esther L. Richards, of Johns Hopkins, and Dean Frances Bernard, of Smith College, as the principal speakers.

A feature of the second day will be an address by Miss Eleanor L. Burns, dean of the Constantine Woman's College, on the education of women in Turkey. An international dinner will be given in the evening at which a number of ambassadors to the United States will be present. President Ellen F. Pendleton will preside, and Dean Virginia C. Childers, of Barnard College, and former president of the International Federation of University Women, will speak on "The International Viewpoint."

Organization activities will be taken up on the final day of the meeting with Mrs. Herbert Hoover presiding at the afternoon session, and Dr. Australia Henry Reinhardt at night. Dr. Reinhardt, who is the president of Mills College, California, is the president of the Association.

There are 400 branches of the organization, every State in the Union except New Hampshire being represented. Its chartered purpose is that of "a body corporate for the purpose of uniting the alumnae of different institutions for practical educational work, for the collection and publication of statistical and other information concerning education, and in general for the maintenance of high standards of education."

Recognizing the rapidly growing interest of women in higher education and the increase in the attendance of women at American colleges and universities the Association is devoting its attention primarily to the maintenance of collegiate standards from the woman's viewpoint, the improving of conditions relating to women students, the equality of women with men on a scholarship basis as members of college faculties, and similar objectives.

NINE FELLOWSHIPS AWARDED

In addition the national organization and its scattered subsidiaries are spending many thousands of dollars each year for fellowships and scholarships to enable women to pursue post graduate courses in various fields of study and scientific research. One of these is an international fellowship of the value of $1500 to enable the holder to carry on a year's research in some country other than her own during the academic year 1927-28.

This has just been awarded to Milie. Jeanne Veillard, of France, who was chosen as the most scholarly of the women of 25 countries recommended for the prize. There were 55 women in the competition, the first of its kind, open to women in any part of the world, to be established. Milie. Veillard is a graduate of the Sorbonne, Paris, and is the first woman to be admitted to the French Academy at Rome. During her tenure of the fellowship she will carry on investigations in archaeology.

There were 35 applicants for the other fellowships which were awarded to eight American women. The winners were: Hazel D. Hansen, of Leeland Stanford University and the American School of Classical Studies, Athens, Greece; Eugenie M. Morenus, professor of mathematics at Sweet Briar College; Helen T. Parsons, of Kansas State Agricultural College and the University of Wisconsin; Marie L. Channing Linthicum, of Johns Hopkins and the University of Illinois; Estelle Freeman, of Wellesley; Elizabeth Evans Lord, of Bryn Mawr and Radcliffe; Roberta D. Cornelius, associate professor of English at Randolph-Macon College; and Margaret Pitkin, of Swarthmore and the University of Chicago.

The A. A. U. W. is an association of college-trained women, only the graduates of approved colleges being eligible to full membership. It is described as rather like an inter-collegiate organization for the 154 alumnae organizations and the approved list that is concerned with the development of women's education and of professional opportunities for women. It was organized in 1882 and in addition to the branches in the United States has branches in Porto Rico, Peking, and several other foreign cities.

The Question Box

Q. Does Hawaii raise many bananas? D. E.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that Hawaii has great possibilities for banana production. Bananas growing now rank third among the agricultural enterprises of the Territory, and the acre yield of this crop exceeds that of any other. The banana can be grown comparatively easily in Hawaii, and large areas may be brought into fruit production in a short time. The banana plant is attacked by few insect pests and diseases and is seldom damaged by wind.

Q. Why is Australia called a continental island? I. G. H.

A. It is regarded as so because it is the world's largest island and only sea-girt continent.

Q. Is the British galleon the same as the American? J. L. S.

A. The British galleon is larger. It contains 277.42 cubic inches, while the American galleon contains 231 cubic inches.

Q. Why does gasoline feel colder than water being used for cleaning purposes? M. L. M.

A. It is because it evaporates more rapidly.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

AN AQUATIC SWELL

A Puffer Fish—Inflated

BY ARTHUR R. N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n.

Once first thought on viewing this picture naturally would be that this fish had cornered an unusually good feeding ground and was in acute need of a thorough round of "daily" deers. If it wished to regain a slender form, it would have to starve.

Quite wrong. This fish is the puffer and if you will cover up the lower half of this picture you will have a flat tire view of this denizen of the deep, for truly the puffer is a two-sided character.

It is an animated, living, pulsating balloon, having the power to inflate itself until it appears almost globular. It has a smooth skin set with prickles, and its eyes look almost too large for the rest of it when it is deflated. This species of the puffer is found in the Atlantic ocean as far north as Maine, and it is one of the queerest quirks of fishdom.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

CLAY CURTIS voluntarily disinherits himself and gives up a life of ease and luxury to follow the example of his father, T. Q. CURTIS, a self-made man whom he admires tremendously. Clay has been an ardent student of music all his life and his ambition is to become a great composer. When he leaves home, he takes with him only hand luggage and music.

Clay finds a room in the poorer section of town, in the home of a MRS. WELLS. She has a daughter, BILLY, who is head of the store department in the munimoth department store owned by Clay's father. Billy is also a violinist of unusual ability. Clay is instantaneously attracted to her, though Billy's first reaction to his presence in her home is one of amazement that the son of her employer should wish to live in such humble surroundings.

Before Clay leaves his room the next morning, Billy hears a shattering of glass. When he departs, she hurries to see what has been broken. There she finds a spilled frame and a picture torn in three parts. Fitting the parts together, she beholds a lovely woman—the actress who has thrown Clay over. Billy, in a rush of anger she does not understand, casts the fragments on the fire.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

"But I tell you I never have worn a six and a half." A heavily powdered and rouged woman, who bought her dresses in the "stylish stout" department, glared at Billy Wells. "I always take a six or a six and a quarter, and when I was a girl I wore a five and a half." Billy interrupted with her carefully cultivated eagerness and flattery. "I can give you a six, but the latest word from Paris is that loosely-fitting gowns are the hallmark of the gentleman." How nicely you keep your hands!" she added artfully, as she worked, with practiced fingers, to get the tight kid over the puffed hands of her customer.

"I was just noticing your hands," Mrs. Dunlop admitted, mollified. "How do you keep them so white and soft?"

"Oh, I make a preparation of my own—equal parts of peroxide and glycerine, faintly scented with rose water, but in our cosmetics department—what is it, Gus?" She turned to the boy who had been trying to get her attention.

"Old T. Q. wants to see you in his private office," the boy whispered gushily.

"All right, Gus, when I am free. Now, Mrs. Dunlop, I'm sure you'll want two pairs of these fawn-colored gloves."

"Three," Mrs. Dunlop said grandly. "I wonder," she lowered her voice. "if you can tell me if there's any truth at all in the rumor—just a rumor, of course—that that charming boy, Clay Curtis, has been disinherited by his father and is working in a factory and living with some dreadfully low class people across the tracks?"

Color flamed in Billy's face, but since it was bent over her salesbook Mrs. Dunlop could not see and be offended.

"I hadn't heard that rumor, Mrs. Dunlop," Billy answered. "Evening gloves, Mrs. Dunlop? I have something here I've been saving just to show you—a Paris import—"

When at last she had sent Mrs. Dunlop away feeling that she was the store's most valued customer, Billy called to her assistant in the glove department to take charge while she was away, and hurried, defiant, resentful and a little frightened, to "old T. Q.'s" private office.

"You wanted to see me, Mr. Curtis?" I'm Billy Wells," she poked her head around the edge of the door marked "Private," and smiled.

T. Q. Curtis frowned at her in his swivel chair and whirled at her from under bushy brows. Then his family air wry smile twitched at the corners of his stern mouth.

"I'm quite well aware of the fact that you're Miss Wells," he told her gruffly. "You've been working here two years, and three months, and you're getting twenty-two dollars a week."

"Sougs like an ad for the Roth memory course," Billy grinned at him, as she stepped more confidently into the room and closed the door. Old T. Q. was in a good humor—he always frowned and rumbled when he felt most kindly.

"I know that much and more about every employee in the store," he boasted proudly, but his eyes twinkled beneath his overhanging brows. "Now, young lady, know why I sent for you?"

"To reward me for my faithful service by making me a buyer for the glove and hosiery departments, I hope."

"Well, not this time. Wait till you've been in the Curtis store another two years and three months and then come to see me about a buyer's job. No, Miss Wells. I think you've got a better idea than that as to why I sent for you. That fool boy of mine is living at your house, isn't he? He gave your home address when he asked Livingston, the insurance man, for a job."

"I told him not to try insurance. He hasn't brass enough to bully people into buying something they ought to have and don't want." Billy shook her head with scornful gravity.

"Did you know my son before he—er—disinherited the old man? I suppose he's told you his melodramatic story by this time, and incidentally, that he's owing you a board bill that he has no prospects of paying."

"Mother and I aren't worried about his board bill," Billy told him calmly, but her blue eyes hardened.

"Pretty sure old T. Q. will ante over, aren't you?" he demanded, leaning close and peering sharply into her eyes.

"No, sir, and I don't think you have a right to suggest a thing like that," she flashed out at him angrily. "He's working, and he paid the first week's board in advance—ten dollars. His week isn't up till Friday, and if he can't pay then, that's mine and mother's lookout, not yours. We're willing to take a chance—on him, not on his father."

"Hm! Working, is he? All the reports I've had of him was that he was turned down. The boys at the Business Men's Club have been giving me bulletins on the prodigal son's progress."

"And I suppose you've let them see how much it pleases you for him to be turned down?" she cried angrily, entirely forgetful for the moment of the fact that she owed her living and her mother's to the man opposite her.

"If you think that's playing fair—"

"Hold your horse, you little spitfire!" Old T. Q. chuckled. "You can't blame me for wanting him to come home and take his place in the store. And my friends turned down his application for jobs because he wasn't trained for the work he wanted to do. What's he doing now?"

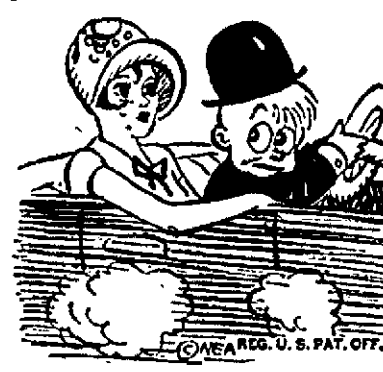

"I don't think I'm at liberty to say," Billy Wells stood up, her sturdy, boyish little body tense with anger.

"Then he must be working in a factory," T. Q. sighed. "Now looka here, little lady. I don't want the boy to be really up against it. I'd like to slip you a little money to make up any deficit in his board bill, and enough to have his clothes cleaned and kept in order. Ten dollars a week is a ridiculous sum for room and board. Your mother can't be making a penny off him—"

Billy could hold back her words no longer. "I think you must be forgetting how poor folks live, Mr. Curtis. We should have charged any other boarder ten dollars a week, and mother doesn't take in a boarder for the fun of the thing. And Clay—young Mr. Curtis—can pay for having his clothes cleaned and pressed or do them himself, like other young men who have to make their own living. He's all right, Mr. Curtis," she retorted suddenly, as her employer's face went suddenly bleak and old; "don't you worry about him. It's good for him, really it is. He's trying to do something fine, something you should be proud of. He'll make the grade if you keep hands off. He's dead set on making a man of himself. No, I didn't know him before, except by sight, and he chose our place entirely by accident; had never heard of me before, or even noticed me in the store, if that's what you mean. Oh, please let him alone. Mr. Curtis! If he's worthy of his father, he'll make good, and if he isn't he'll come crying home to you."

"Maybe I'd better warn you, Miss Wells, that Clay has just been through a pretty bad time with a New York actress, and he's down on women for the time being. Better not count too much on this propinquity business—"

"I think you're vile!" Billy blazed at him, and whirled toward the door. Then realization of what she had done swept over her. But it was not in her to eat her words just to save her position. "I suppose this lets me out," she said. "I'm sorry, but—I can't take anything back, Julie Barker will make a good head of the department—"

"Put your brakes on, young lady!" Old T. Q. roared at her. "Who set you up to do the firing and promoting around here? This was a private conference, between Clay's father and—I think I'm right in using the title—his friend. The store has nothing to do with it. Go on back and sell gloves little spitfire, and see if you can get rid of some of them elbow-length white kids that that fool buyer I fired last month got us stuck with."

"Thank you, Mr. Curtis," Billy choked, and dashed like a spanked child at the tears on her cheeks. "I

I guess I used a pretty strong word a minute ago, and I'm—"

Before returning to her department, Billy stepped off on the fifth floor at the women employees' rest rooms. The outer of the two rooms was furnished with book cases holding hundreds of books, tables and writing materials and a dozen well cushioned couches, and rugs almost as thick and soft as those that muted the footsteps of weary women shoppers.

A voluptuous, black-eyed beauty rose from her couch and stretched luxuriously as Billy Wells entered.

"Hello, dearie. My fifteen minute rest period's up, darn the luck. Wish old T. Q. had made it half an hour. Slaves—that's what we are. Lend me your lipstick, Billy? Mine's worn clear down."

"Sorry, Nyda. I just can't bear to let anyone use my lipstick, and I can't bear to use anyone else's," Billy told her curtly, because she was in a hurry to get away from Nyda Lomax's too observing black eyes.

"Well, for crying out loud!" Nyda ejaculated. "Just listen to Lady Clare Vere de Vere! Bet old T. Q. bawled you out. Your eyes are red. Julie said you'd been called on the carpet."

"He wanted to ask me to push those elbow white gloves we're stuck with," Billy told her shortly.

"Say, Billy, that you?" a sleepy little voice called languidly from a nearby couch. "Did old T. Q. spill any dope to you about that meeting of women employees he's called for five forty-five? A nerve he's got—making us stay after hours to listen to some 'onward and upward' bunk, I suppose."

"I didn't know about the meeting, Winnie," Billy acknowledged. "And I'd promised—mother—I'd be home early tonight." But her promise had not been made to her mother. She had promised Clay that she would play one of his songs with him that night.

Why Business Men Invest Part of Their Profits in Utility Preferred Shares.

They do. A good many of them. And more than a few business corporations, too. For these reasons:

- 1: Some of them, because they know that while their own businesses are now profitable, changes of one kind or another may some time make them unprofitable. They wish to salt away a part of today's profits in the inside shares of an industry that is as certain as any form of business can be to go on indefinitely earning a fair yearly profit.
- 2: Some of them, because their own businesses don't need all of their present profits. They want a safe investment for the surplus, where it will earn a good income rate, and where it can be readily turned into cash in case of need.
- 3: Some of them, because their own businesses are mainly dependent for success on their individual management. They know they will presently want to relax and take life easy, and they want an assured permanent income thereafter from a big, impersonal, State-regulated, steadily growing, public service industry.

These successful business men thus endorse the judgment of the thousands of wage earners and other savings investors who buy the preferred shares of Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co. and its affiliated utilities, as issued from year to year, to finance the growth of their public service properties.

Securities Department is now selling the small remainder of a $2,000,000 issue of Milwaukee Electric 6% cumulative preferred stock. During the past four months 1,500 men and 1,300 women in 185 cities and towns of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, and a few in other states, have bought nearly all of this issue. A new issue of 6% shares will follow this one, authorized by the State to pay for additions to the Company's income-producing public service property. In this way a larger part of the profits of the industry are each year returned to its customers and employees in dividends.

These shares sell for $100 each, payable all cash or $10 down and $10 monthly per share. Because the shares represent money already invested and earning income, the dividends on paid-up shares start the day you buy them. Interest at 6% yearly is allowed on monthly payments, credited on the final payment. Dividends of $1.50 per share are mailed to shareholders June 1, Sept. 1, Dec. 1 and March, each year. The Company has paid its preferred share dividends regularly every three months since 1900; has paid common share dividends averaging 8% yearly every year since 1903.

You can buy the shares of Securities Department; at Wisconsin Gas & Electric Co. offices in Racine, Kenosha, Waukegan, Watertown, Burlington, Whitewater, South Milwaukee and Cudahy; at Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat & Power Co. offices in Appleton and Neenah-Menasha; at Badger Public Service Co. office in Plymouth; at Peninsular Power Co. office in Iron Mountain, Michigan. NEW FASHIONS A PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN BEAUTY HINTS

ADVICE CONCERNING THE BOB

Mme. Helena Rubinstein

PERHAPS the most radical of present day innovation for woman is the bob. This was first ushered in by the extremist—the woman of ultra tendencies, but it is a long way past that stage now. The most conservative women have succumbed to the charm and convenience of the bob and from season to season it has been an all-absorbing question as to whether the bob would continue to stay in vogue. Many authorities think we have passed that stage and that even the question whether or not the bob will remain in vogue is passe.

Although the bob is becoming more and more universal, there are some women who will never bob their hair because they do not feel it suits their personality and type to do so and to this woman I would never suggest it. Personally, I greatly admire women who have the courage of their own convictions and stick to a style which they know best suits them, not blindly following the dictates of the mode.

I do not like bobbed hair for myself. A couple of seasons ago I had my hair bobbed in Paris and I had no sooner done so than I regretted it and decided at once to let it grow out and just as soon as it was long enough I wore a chignon as the mode of the neck and continued to do so until my own hair was long enough to arrange that way.

If you feel the bob is in keeping with your type and your mode of living and you can give it the attention it desires, by all means bob it, but do not do so just because it is so popular if you feel yourself that it does not suit YOU. Treat your hair as the asset it really is and carefully so it will best enhance your other features.

The swirl bob is the newest feat of Paris bobbers; one's bob must be swirled to be smart, according to advices from the world's fashion center from which I have just returned. The new swirled bob is very chic. Very decided is the campaign in hair arrangement against anything that suggests straight lines. Soft, curved, natural and irregular lines that best suit the contour of your face and the shape of your head are the ones by which the most artistic hairdressers are cutting hair these days. Hair cutting is indeed an art and if you have not as yet bobbed your hair but have decided to do so, by all means have it cut by some one who knows the importance of line. They will cut your hair so that it will be in keeping with the slim silhouette now so fashionable and the contour of your head will conform to the contour of your body.

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tynies joined in Tommy's song. Said Scouty, "Well, we can't go wrong. We'll sing a little while, and then we'll have a bite to eat. Why I could eat most anything, no matter what they choose to bring." And Tommy said, "What you get here, will really be a treat." And he was right, for after while, the Tynies had real cause to smile. Wee Tommy's mother called them in to sit down at a table. It was a sight to please the eye—potatoes, meat and cherry pie. And then the Tynies all were told, "Now eat all that you're able."

They stuffed and stuffed, 'cause my 'twas good. They likely ate more than they should. But, after they had finished they all took a dandy snooze. This fixed them up and they felt great. "That was our finest meal, to date," said Clowny. "And you are the kind of friends we hate to lose."

"If you'll come back, that will be well," said Tommy. Then he bid farewell to all the Tynies as they scampered on their way. "I wish that every time we sing, we'd know 'twould such a fine meal bring," laughed Copsy. And the others felt the very self-same way.

When 'bout a good mile walk they'd had, they found another little land. The Tynies eyed him close and saw some books beneath his arm. The small boy saw the Tynies, too, and promptly shouted, "Howdy-do. Come over here and see my books. You're very safe from harm."

"To go to school's one thing I hate. That's why I'm always very late. Let's sit down on the roadside and I'll show you pictures grand." The Tynies then sat on the ground, and lots of pretty things were found within the monstrous school books that the lad held in his hand.

(The Tynies have another adventure in the next story.)

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

Banning interrupted Albert Ettleson's loquacious account of his acquaintance with Cherry to ask: "You are a married man, Mr. Ettleson?"

"Why, yes, sir, I am." But Ettleson was not embarrassed. He was enjoying himself.

"Now, Mr. Ettleson, may I ask if you and Miss Cherry continued your friendship on your succeeding trips to this city and if you became closer friends?"

Over Churchill's objection Ettleson was instructed to answer.

"Well, we did a lot of getting," Ettleson admitted, with a leer.

"Now, Mr. Ettleson, I submit a telegram and ask if you can identify it."

Banning asked pleasantly.

Ettleson accepted the yellow slip of paper handed, then said, "Ter, it's a message I sent to Cherry."

"I will ask you to read the telegram," Banning directed, exuberant over his victory.

Ettleson was shamelessly loud and clear as he read: "Sorry cannot make it this week-end. Somebody suspicious. Don't worry. Writing full instructions. Love and kisses, Albert."

"Now, Mr. Ettleson, will you tell the jury about those 'full instructions' referred to?" Banning directed.

"Why, we were planning to go away together. I was going to meet Cherry here on Saturday and take her to New York with me."

Churchill's angry objection was sustained and Banning varied his method of examination.

"Did you subsequently write to Miss Cherry embodying those 'full instructions' in a letter?"

"I did."

Banning accepted a letter from an assistant and placed it in Ettleson's hand. "Do you identify this as the letter referred to?"

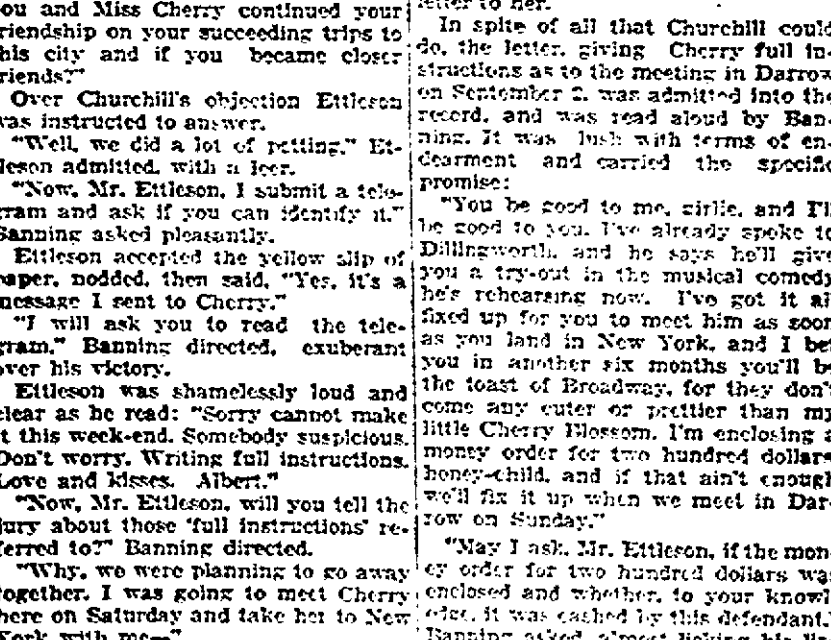

Ettleson looked at the letter over carefully, then nodded. "Sure! That's my letter to her."

In spite of all that Churchill could do, the letter, giving Cherry full instructions as to the meeting in Darrow, was admitted into the record, and was read aloud by Banning. It was just with terms of endorsement and carried the specific promise:

"You be good to me, little, and I'll be good to you. I've already spoke to Dillingworth, and he says he'll give you a try-out in the musical comedy he's rehearsing now. I've got it all fixed up for you to meet him as soon as you land in New York, and I bet you in another six months you'll be come any cutter or better than my little Cherry Blossom. I'm enclosing a money order for two hundred dollars, honey-child, and if that ain't enough we'll fix it up when we meet in Darrow on Sunday."

"May I ask, Mr. Ettleson, if the money order for two hundred dollars was enclosed and whether to your knowledge, it was cashed by the defendant?" Banning asked, almost licking his lips with satisfaction.

"Sure! I sent it, she cashed it and spent it!" Ettleson not across in spite of Churchill's objections.

Sport Frocks Divided Into Two Groups--Formal And Informal; Beads Not Permissible For Sport

BY LUCY CLAIRE
Special Fashion Adviser for the Smart Set

I HAVE told you that there are really two groups of sport frocks—the formal and the informal. The first group, as you know, is the one of today, for these simple frocks of straight smart lines are seen from early morning until the dinner hour in the evening. The second group consists of frocks that are intended for those who are actually participating in sports, and are therefore designed with an eye toward comfort and practicality, as well as smartness.

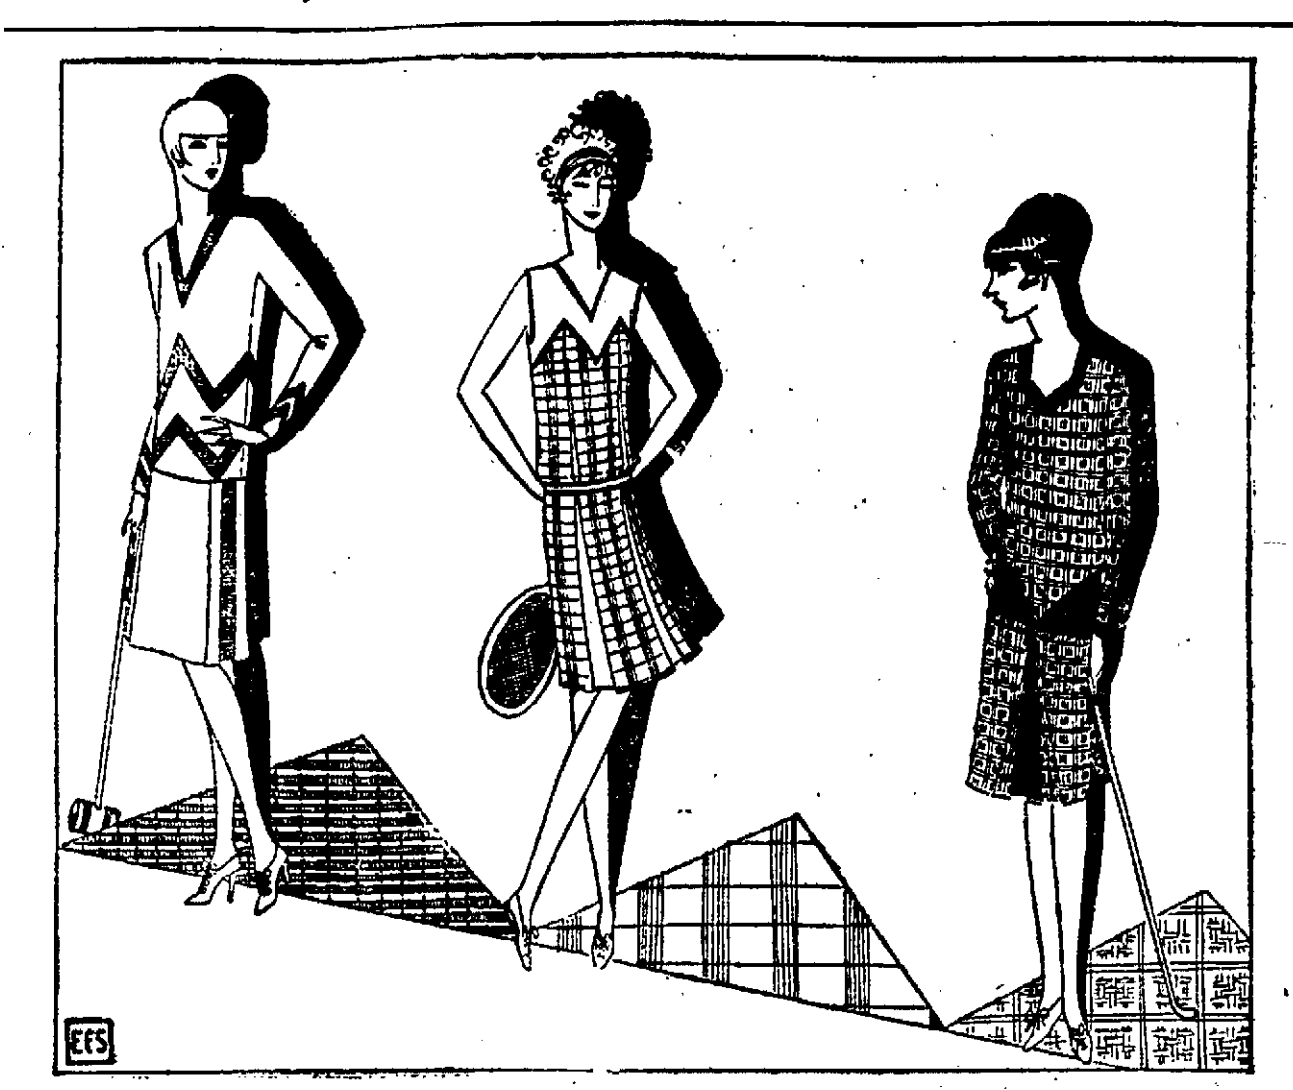

I want you to look first at the tennis frock of crisp, cool gingham and you will notice that it is sleeveless, and I might add that this is the single exception in our mode of long close-fitting sleeves. But tennis is such an active, strenuous game that it demands all possible freedom of movement and the absence of sleeves on the tennis court is an accepted item of chic. Would you not like to have this frock of crisp, cool gingham in a pale coral or a shade of pink and white? The yoke is of plain white gingham and so are the inverted pleats which run to the hem of the skirt. After each game, it can make its way to the tub of soapuds and come out as fresh and bright as it was the day you bought it. It is probably the fact that gingham is sunfast and tubfast that has made it so popular for sports wear for this type of costume is subject to hard usage, both in the outdoors and laundering.

Now I want you to examine the golf frock of the right. It is both practical and comfortable, but notice how different it is from the tennis frock. The sleeves are long and its lines in general are more formal. I have selected for this, one of the newest patterns of gingham worked out in lines of coral, first, because coral has recently been introduced, and second, because I like to see vivid colors used for sports wear. The simple straight one-piece lines of this dress insure freedom of movement as well as smartness of effect. There is no belted construction about the waist, instead, the waistline has been suggested by the two triangular motifs set across each hip. The deep pleat in the center of the skirt has not been stitched down at all, and it gives ample fullness for a long stride and swing.

At the left I have illustrated a frock for croquet and all of the other more gentle forms of sport. It is of plain blue gingham and the zigzag, angular trimming is of figured gingham in a gray blue and black pattern. Here, it is possible to have the more modish tight sleeve, while in the golf frock the sleeves did not tighten above the wrist, nor is it necessary to have any more fullness in the skirt than will be comfortable for ordinary walking. Yet the dress is charmingly simple, and you will notice that none of these young people wear jewelry of any kind—not even a string of beads is permissible.

Tomorrow I shall tell you of a mode for the early morning hours.

Love Letters Of The Great

AS COMPILED BY DIANA RICE

HENRY VIII—1490-1547

It is hard to believe that a man who disposed of wives as expeditiously as did Henry VIII, could write a very sincere love letter. Yet to two of his queens, at least, this arrogant king of England seems to have indited candid as well as affectionate lines. To Anne Boleyn he sent also his portrait set in a bracelet, which he begged her to wear always. That this fair queen later lost her head for no greater indiscretion than having failed to hold the fancy of a fickle monarch, argues her less skilled in adroitness than in de-married Jane Seymour twenty-votion. This husband of six wives four hours after he beheaded Anne, Jane died one year later, while still a queen. Henry's infamies blot the pages of a long chapter in English history. His reign was marked by blood and tears-women's tears.

Henry VIII to Jane Seymour

My dear Friend and Mistress—The bearer of these few lines from my entirely devoted servant will deliver into thy fair hands a token of my true affection for thee, hoping you will keep it forever in your sincere love for me. Advertising you there is a ballad made lately of great derision against us, which if it go much abroad and is seen by you, I pray you to pay no manner of regard to it. I am not at present informed who is the setter forth of this malicious writing, but if he is found out he shall be straitly punished for it. For the things we lack, I have minded my lord to supply them to you as soon as he can buy them. Thus hoping shortly to receive you in these arms, I end for the present.

Your own loving servant and sovereign.

H. R.

King Henry VIII to Anne Boleyn

By revolving in my mind the contents of your last letters, I have put myself into great agony, not knowing how to interpret them, whether to my disadvantage (as I understand some others) or not. I beseech you earnestly to let me know your real mind as to the love between us two. It is needful for me to obtain this answer to you, having been for a whole year wounded with the dart of love, and not yet assured whether I shall succeed in finding a place in your heart and affection. This uncertainty has hindered me of late from declaring you my mistress, lest it should prove that you only entertain for me an ordinary regard. But if you please to do the duty of a true and loyal mistress, and to give up yourself, heart and person, to me, who will be, as I have been, your most loyal servant, (if your rigour does not forbid me), I promise you that not only the name shall be given you, but also that I will take you for my mistress, cutting off all others that are in competition with you, out of my thoughts and affections, and serving you only.

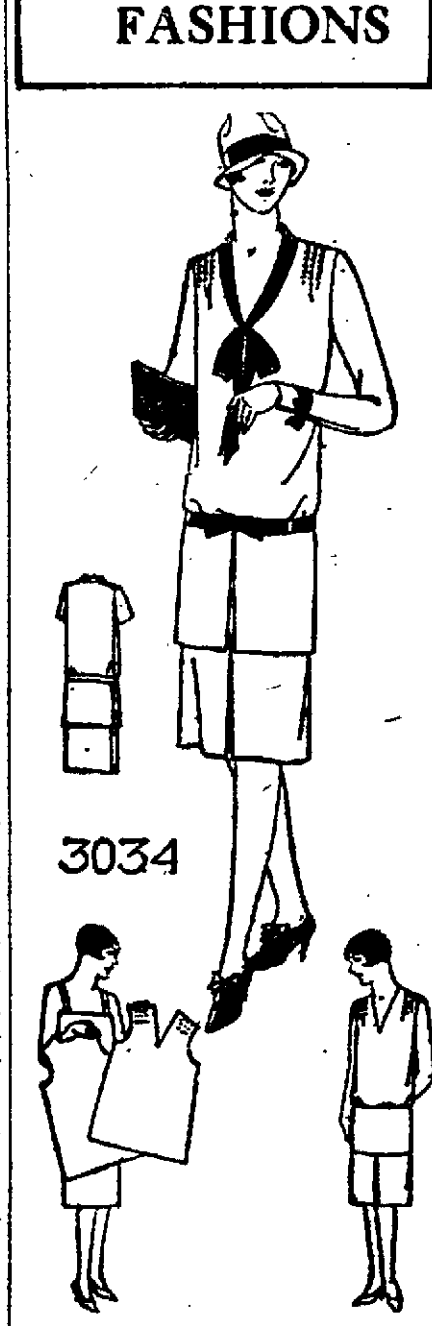

I beg you to give an entire answer to this my rude letter, that I may know on what and how far I may depend; but if it does not please you to answer me in writing, let me know some place where I may have it by word of mouth, and I will go thither with all my heart.

No more, for fear of tiring you. Written by the hand of him who would willingly remain, Yours.

H. REX.

TOO MANY THINGS IN THE WORLD!

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BAILEY

I AM impressed more and more by the complexity of life. There are too many "things" in the world. There are too many books, too many crowds, too many styles, too many things to do, and too many places to go.

When I say places, I mean that. Dobbin on a mud road was limited to a radius of fifteen or twenty miles. A trip to New York or Chicago was like unto a grand tour now. Few people got to Europe and no one got around the world.

As to styles, people wore serge or alpaca, broadcloth or satin, and it was of one color usually and one style. They wore tan or they wore gray, or perhaps it was a green season. Sleeves were leg o' mutton or balloon or tight or puffed at the wrist. But it was decided for them. There was only one way and they did it.

As for books they read "the latest." There was always one latest and a hundred latest. They subscribed for one, two or perhaps three magazines, not ten or fifteen, and world wouldn't have listened then.

Credes! Well, they believed what they were told. There were no such things as fundamentalists and modernists, and if Freud and Schopenhauer were saying things, they were saying them to each other. The world wouldn't have listened then.

Now we're trying to go everywhere, to read everything, to wear everything. It's not a case of keeping up with the Joneses, it's a case of trying to keep up with everybody, and one jump ahead of a keeper.

A famous criminologist writes in his book that crime and nervous breakdown are due in most cases to failure to adjust character with environment. It isn't hard to believe that.

In the old days we had little or no choosing to do. We had one way to go, one way to live and we were content. Now it is up to each of us to make a choice, not one choice but hundreds. We may be free, we may be doing our own thinking now, but it is hard on us.

We might try the creed of simplicity. If our tastes are simple and uncomplicated and we get away from the idea that we must keep up with everything and everybody, we will be happier, I am sure. We can keep ourselves simple and that is all that matters.

BREAKFAST—Baked rhubarb, cereal with dates, cream, crisp toast, soft cooked eggs, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Lemon loaf, cramed potatoes, carrot fruit and whipped cream, milk, tea.

DINNER—Bake ham, browned sweet potatoes, steamed spinach with butter and lemon juice, romaine and orange salad, rice souffle, bread, milk, coffee.

If, when you are planning to serve spinach, you will give this vegetable a long bath in a large pan of water you will find it much easier to clean. Several hours before time to cook the spinach cut off the roots. Drop the leaves loosely into a big pan of water and wash through several waters. When you think the spinach is clean put it into a large pan of salt water and let stand two hours. Then when ready to use, rinse through several clear waters and cook in the water that clings to the leaves. This thorough washing insures delicious cooked spinach free from grit.

CARROT SALAD

One cup grated raw carrot, 1 cup cottage cheese, lemon juice, sweet cream, hearts lettuce.

Sprinkle carrots with as much lemon juice as they can absorb. Let stand half an hour. Combine carrots and cottage cheese adding enough cream to make moist. Season with salt and pepper and drop from tip of spoon into lettuce leaves. This is an excellent salad for children.

Household Hints

FUR RUGS

Fur rugs, like other skin materials, will dry out and soon turn fast in steam-heated rooms, and should be washed in warm suds, like a dog. If mounted, this is impossible, but such rugs can be cleaned with warm cornmeal.

LIBRARY CLOCKS

A handsome clock often gives a living quality to a library that adds infinite charm to the room.

GLEAMING SILVER

The good housekeeper cleans her silver regularly once a week and keeps it gleaming so that it will never be necessary to scour it.

EGG DISHES

New variety of egg dishes appear each spring when the egg supply increases. Souffles, tartlets, croquettes, eggs in aspic, entrees, timbales are all delicious and healthy. Eggs should be used freely in spring and summer.

GERMANS MUST PAY 22 PER CENT IN TAXES

Berlin—(P)—More than 22 per cent of all that the average German earns is paid to federal, state and municipal governments in direct and indirect taxes.

An exhaustive analysis of the burden borne by the people since the war by Dr. Herbert Conrad and Dr. Friedrich Raab, tax experts, shows that the average person works more than one day a week for the government.

While the national income has increased only from $10,000,000,000 in 1913 to $10,700,000,000 at present, taxes have jumped from one billion dollars to two and one-third billions, the report says. The average unskilled laborer, it is shown, pays proportionately higher taxes than government officials, teachers, skilled workmen and office workers, and only slightly less than bank directors and professional men and women.

NEW ENAMEL WILL SAVE WOMEN WORK OF MUCH SCOURING

Substance Cannot Be Roughened, Discolored or Harmed in Any Way

Scouring the kitchen sink soon will be a thing of the past because women now are using sinks with a new type of enamel, according to Tom Long of Ryan and Long, plumbers.

The sink has received a supply of the firm with this new enamel. The enamel was perfected after 20 years of study in the United States and abroad, and is the only sink enamel that cannot be roughened, discolored, or harmed in any way by fruit and vegetable acids, cleansers, limes or other materials used in the home. Since the surface stays smooth and glossy, it is easy to keep clean without constant scouring.

The final steps leading to this discovery are quite interesting, according to Mr. Long. Last year the manufacturer who has produced the recent improvement learned that mineral baths in certain European health resorts were of enamel absolutely unknown in the States. It resisted the action of strong mineral waters.

The manufacturer figured that a similar enamel could be made to resist the action of fruit acids and an expert was sent abroad to study the European invention. Work in the home laboratories was concentrated on research work in sink enamels. Various tests were made and processes for producing enamel were evolved. Finally an enamel was perfected that met not only with the most crucial tests of the research laboratories but also the tests of the famous Mellon Institute. The new enamel has a hardness and durability of the European product and also has the qualities to meet the needs of the exacting American kitchen.

For instance, it had to meet the "lemon test." A slice of lemon was left on the enamel for several days and then a lead pencil was rubbed over the spot. The pencil marks on the enamel where the lemon had rested were as easily removed as those on the section not subjected to the action of the fruit acid. No other plumbing fixture enamel can meet this test successfully, according to Mr. Long.

Home economists experts, builders and plumbers regard this new enamel as the most valuable contribution to kitchen sinks since enamel was first developed 45 years ago, he said.

Reduce Personal Debts Is Financier's Advice

Hudson Park, Mass.—Roger W. Dabson today resumes his comments on general business conditions, and devotes his current interview to credit interview to credit conditions.

He seems optimistic so far as available funds are concerned, but does not seem to reduce the personal indebtedness. His full statement is as follows:

BANK SITUATION
"The banks of the country should continue in good condition. The deposits are greater than ever before in history, while the reserves are fully up to normal. This has been brought about by three factors: (1) the tremendous amount of gold in the country; (2) the far sighted policy of the Federal Reserve Board; and (3) the wisdom of our Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon. Although money is only one barometer of business and should not be considered itself, yet this barometer—money—points to continued business activity in most lines for the coming spring. Of course, certain sections, such as Florida, are suffering from reactions; while certain industries, such as the cotton mill industry of New England, are suffering from changed styles and selling methods. Most legitimate industries, however, are opening the year with good gross business although net profits may not be satisfactory.

"Considerably more money should be available for mortgage during 1927 than in 1926. The Federal Reserve Banking Bill at the last session of Congress, this bill provides that a National Bank may loan, secured by first mortgage on real estate, 50% of its time deposits. This should make legally available several billions of dollars.

"It is one piece of legislation distinctly in the interests of the farmers and business men of the central and western portions of our country. This should tend, both to make real estate loans easier to secure, and also to lower interest rates on such loans. Of course, if the banks are to place more money out on mortgages, they will have less with which to buy bonds and less to loan in New York. Therefore, to the extent that the McFadden Bill will help the farming communities, it will result in less money being available for the financial and industrial centers of the East.

INSTALLMENT BUSINESS
"The big fly in the ointment today is the tremendous growth of the installment business, although this has tapered off somewhat lately. Without doubt, installment sales have been, up to the present time, a great impetus to business, especially in the cities. Retailers have been able to sell more goods due to the installment system. Installment business has helped to keep manufacturers supplied with orders, and consequently to keep workmen employed who otherwise would be idle. The earnings of these workmen have been used for purchasing more goods and more services as a basis for further credit expansion. Therefore, present prosperous conditions owe much to installment buying, and to those who have furthered it. I would not want to risk the elimination of it at such a time, as any such abrupt elimination would surely bring on a panic.

"Every good thing, however, has its evils and can be abused. Successful life depends on balancing things and having all in proper proportion. Every man is entitled to a certain amount of purchasing credit. Before the days of prohibition such credit was denied to American wage workers. Today these wage workers have almost unlimited credit. Yet wage workers should adhere to a proper proportion between their installment purchases and their incomes, as a bank adheres to a proper proportion between its loans and deposits. An individual is the same as a corporation. Safety requires a proper reserve for both.

Wage workers should not be induced by their wives and children to make purchases on the installment plan which they cannot afford to make. Statistics indicate that many wage workers today are obliged to use 50 per cent or more of their weekly wages for making payments on installment purchases. This should be checked. Merchants should extend credit, but only a reasonable amount, and only for a reasonable time.

PAY YOUR BILLS
"One of the healthiest signs in the present situation is the campaign which are being made to get people to pay their bills promptly. In several cities the retail merchant associations are making definite efforts along this line. The National Retail Association is prepared to supply any local body with a series of newspaper ads which are being made to get people to pay their bills promptly. In several cities the retail merchant associations are making definite efforts along this line. The National Retail Association is prepared to supply any local body with a series of newspaper ads which are being made to get people to pay their bills promptly.

"Mrs. Martin is one of the world's pioneer woman suffragists. Born at Homer, Ohio, September 23, 1838, as a young girl she married Dr. Canisius Woodbury, by whom she had a son and daughter who now live with her. She was chosen by the Equal Rights Party to carry their presidential banner against Grant. Afterward she came to England and carried on her political propaganda. Eventually she married the late John W. Martin, the banker son of an old Worcester shire family. On his death in 1897 she inherited his entire estate.

NATURALLY

FATAL BLUNDER

WITNESS: I did.
CORONER: Did he receive any medical attention?
WITNESS: Not he, he was carried into a drug store by mistake.—Life.

definitely. Financial panics are due to ignoring either the Ten Commandments or the Multiplication Table.

BE LOYAL TO YOUR WORK

"The other day I was talking with the cashier of a prominent Florida bank. I asked him how things were going and he said: 'First-rate so far as the bank is concerned, but' said he, 'I should die I doubt whether my life could secure enough people in town to be my pallbearers. I lost most of my friends during the boom because I did not loan them money. Now those to whom I loaned are cursing me because I did loan them. They say if I had been a real friend of theirs and had not been so anxious to make money for the bank, I would have turned them down when they approached for their loans. This is a true story, and the moral of it should sink deep into the heart of every banker and merchant. Let us keep out of debt and keep others out of debt by insisting that cash values and sales to customers who pay monthly shall be held up to a proper proportion of our assets. The devil and the deep sea, by being too heavily loaded. Disasters come through uneven loading which causes a ship to tip to one side.

"The banks of our community are next to the churches and newspapers—the best assets you have. The officers and directors of such banks are your best citizens. Most of them are giving freely of their time to protect your savings and build up your industries. No sensible man envies a conscientious banker. A bank must loan its deposits in order to exist; while it makes a bad loan it suffers severely thereby. A banker is constantly 'between the devil and the deep sea.' Hence, I urge all to be loyal to the community banks. Don't knock your bank, but boost it. As your bank prospers, you and the entire community will benefit. A bank bears the same relation to a loan as the heart to the body. Don't overwork it or weary it.

GENERAL BUSINESS
"Considering the country as a whole in all times of industry, general business continues to hold up well. It is true there has been quite a decline since the first of the year, but this is largely seasonable. Business still stands at 9 per cent above normal, which is exceptionally good. Our greatest danger is that we take too much for granted, and constantly insist on an increase. If our motto would be 'Live and Let Live' we would all be better off. Competition may be the life of trade, but it also tends to greatly increase the cost of doing business. For this reason, I am very hopeful of the work which the various co-operative organizations and groups are doing for business. The Rotary and Kiwanis groups, the Lion and other groups which get business men together once a week, should keep business good. Most Chambers of Commerce do good work, except when over-enthusiastic secretaries begin to knock other cities. Knocking never does any good, and harms the knocker as well as he who is knocked. One of the best barometers of civilization is the ability of people to co-operate. Cities which are most prosperous today are those where bankers, manufacturers, merchants, and wage workers are all pulling together.

STORMS RESTRICTING DEMAND FOR LUMBER

In its weekly market review, the American Lumberman, Chicago, says: Storms and floods throughout the middle West and South are restricting demand for lumber to carry the immense building program ahead of the cities, and are making possible the hauling of material by farmers. Despite the unfavorable conditions, retail yards in the middle West and South are disposing of a good deal of lumber. Larger plants have found replacements in the East. In the East, retail lumber trade generally is rather quiet, though improving. The California market is now showing much activity.

Southern softwood mill operations are affected by the floods, even the larger plants being handicapped while small mills are forced to keep down. On the West Coast, fire production is being voluntarily curtailed, and western pine mills in the Inland Empire and California are keeping their output in line with current demand, redwood operators following the same policy. The outlook for softwood appears to be bright, and the demand for softwood is strengthening of softwood quotations with advances recorded in some species, notably northern white pine, during the week. For the year to date, the principal softwood mills have sold twelve per cent more than they cut, and when compared with the nine per cent above last year's output, the fourteen weeks of last year this makes a good showing.

A very strong situation is developing in southern hardwoods, on account of floods forcing many mills to close, and putting the lowlands in such condition that logging is impossible for several weeks at least. Mills along the Mississippi and its tributaries, however, thought it wise to sell what stock they could as soon as they received flood warnings, so that sale prices have not yet shown as much advance as might be expected. Quotations are about 10 per cent higher than last year, and further mark-ups are predicted. Oak flooring plants are more largely in the market and furniture makers have begun to pick up a good deal of hardwood, while the increasing output of higher-priced automobiles is leading to heavier purchases of raw material. Demand for northern hardwoods is expanding, and on account of the small log supply available to the mills, their prices are very firmly held.

A SERVANT PARTY
A hostess gave a big party for which a number of extra servants were engaged. Seeing one young man standing alone, she asked, "I'll find you a partner?"
"No, please don't trouble," he replied. "I'm afraid it might make the other waiters jealous."—Tit-Bits.

BADGER PRINTING CO. SHOWS STEADY GROWTH SINCE '21

Firm Has Annual Pay Roll of Approximately $50,000. Manager Reports

A study of the history of the Badger Printing company shows a steady growth in all departments since its organization in 1921 according to Dave Smith, manager. The firm has a pay roll of approximately $50,000 a year.

The firm was incorporated in 1921 with H. Schommer, A. Jacobs and B. W. Martin as the major stockholders. The plant was located at 720 W. Washington st. Machines and school animals were printed and all kinds of job work was done. In 1923 David Smith purchased the interests of Mr. Martin and Mr. Jacobs and took over active management of the business.

Owing to increasing orders and the demand for service, it was necessary to build an addition to the plant in August, 1925. The addition cost $25,000. The business in every department continued to increase until finally the old plant was outgrown and in February, 1927, the purchase of the Meyer Press company buildings and equipment was affected.

Purchase of materials is slightly more than $35,000 annually. Practically all supplies purchased are products of the Fox river valley. The Badger Printing company now is the second largest printing firm in the valley.

Following the sale of the Meyer Press to the Badger company, an announcement was made by the officers that the advertising and color work of the Meyer Press was to be continued with the publication of magazines.

The company now prints eight monthly magazines with a total circulation of 100,000 copies. They are distributed throughout the valley state in the Union. A new Kelly automatic press has been installed with a capacity of 4,000 sheets an hour. The company has contracts to print 17 school annuals during the coming year and it is probable that the list will increase. This is one of Appleton's most rapidly growing industries.

STEEL MARKET MORE SLUGGISH THIS WEEK

New Business Shrinks Faster Than Production, Survey Shows

Cleveland, Ohio—Iron Trade Review says: Sluggish tendencies are more pronounced in the steel markets this week as the momentum from the record March becomes spent. New business has shrunk more than production. Last month were partially anticipative. Producers characterize the present situation as a lull rather than a reaction and claim that higher operating rates and incoming orders are slightly heavier than a year ago.

Competition in business continues sharp and while the price structure as a whole is not perceptibly weaker the setup is not one making for strength. For seasonal reasons new products are an exception to the quiet or market. The inactivity in pig iron is attributed more to between-quartile lull than to the inherent market weakness. Steel ingot operations probably average 88 per cent this week, a loss of 2 points.

More variations are appearing in semisimplified steel. Sheet bars are off 50 cents, to a range of $33.50 to $34 at Pittsburgh, while slabs and billets have lost 41 and have been sold at $32. Wire rods are down 31 at Pittsburgh, to $41 with a proportionate reduction at Chicago. Specifications for semisimplified material have experienced a decided check at Pittsburgh.

Connellsville furnace coke continues to exhibit weakness. Consumers of pig iron are specifying liberally against second-quarter contracts but new business is light.

Independent sheetmakers set new highs in March when they rolled 359,340 tons and shipped 333,436 tons. March bookings—$44,000—were the best since September. Demand for sheets has eased off in the past week, as much as 20 per cent in the East. Ten fewer independent mills are operating this week in the Mahoning valley. Prices in all districts continue ragged. Some makers of the plate have received July specifications and have been enabled to maintain an 85 per cent gain.

Inactivity of the automobile industry to quicken its pace has exerted a repressive influence of many steel lines. Some makers of hot-rolled strip are quoting widths up to 6 inches at $2.00, Pittsburgh from 6 to 12 inches (not inclusive) at 2.10c, and from 12 to 14 inches, depending upon the gauge, at 2.20c to 2.40c.

The low bid on 2000 tons of cast iron pipe for Chicago figures back to $34.70, Birmingham, whereas $35 to $37 has been considered the market. The weather citizen to purchase the clock and bells of the Bastille, and present them to France, a movement to that end has been started in Paris. The clock and bells are now kept in a private foundry in France. The once-famous time-teller is without a face, which was riddled with bullets during the assault on the Bastille, and the statues of Youth and Age which adorned the front are gone. The bells are said to be of finest bronze. On two of them are royal and other historic decorations and inscriptions.

WILL MAKE AN ATTEMPT TO PHOTOGRAPH COMET

Chicago—(P)—A spectrum photograph of a comet's tail, the first ever attempted by science, will be undertaken in June by University of Chicago scholars.

When the Pons-Winnecke comet gets within four and a half million miles of earth—the closest approach of a comet on record—Professor Edwin B. Frost, director of Yerkes observatory, and Professor Harvey D. Lemon of the department of physics will use cameras in an effort to determine whether ionized carbon-monoxide is an element of the comet's tail. Frost and Lemon have been awaiting the opportunity since 1924. The experiment will be undertaken at Yerkes' observatory at Williams' Bay, Wis., by means of special cameras attached to telescopes. Professor Lemon and his associates already have proved that comet tail spectra form from ionized carbon monoxide.

Mariano, Fla.—(P)—The circus has kept pace with other big business in consolidation and modernization, but it has one survivor of the old wagon show days—Ernest Hagen, whose tent show is known to denizens of the big tops as "the last of the hay burners." Long before the big circuses have completed their winter overhauling, the Haas show starts its annual trek up the Atlantic seaboard, dodging railroad towns with its wagons and trucks, and prospering mightily by playing inland hamlets with the gaudy vestments of 35 years ago. Even motor equipment has been added reluctantly by Haas to the old "hay burner" wagons. Provisions are bought from farmers. Every winter Haas offers to sell out, but the coming of spring finds the call of the road beckoning with an appeal that even his seventy odd years cannot resist.

SUFFRAGE MOTHER FINDS BRITISH PAL

Mrs. Martin Spends Declining Years as Friend of Father of House of Lords

Bredons Norton, England.—(P)—Mrs. Victoria Claffin Woodhull Martin, who was a candidate for President of the United States in 1872, is spending her declining years here in active political discussion with one of England's ablest peers. She is 88 years old and has lived in England 50 years.

Mrs. Martin is still as interested in woman's rights and eugenics as she was opposed both General Grant and Horace Greeley for the Presidency but she says she can't understand "these complicated British politics." She sometimes sits for hours at the side of her old neighbor and friend, the Earl of Coventry, who is known as "the father of England's House of Lords," talking about the issues of the day.

She lives here at Norton Park, Worcestershire estate, with her son and daughter, exercising a sort of feudal authority as Lady of the Manor. She is noted for her hospitality and benevolence in the villages hereabouts. The fetes and pageants which are organized every year at her Manor House Club on her private domain have become institutions. They are invariably opened by Lord Coventry, who is four months older than Mrs. Martin. His estate, Croome Court, adjoins hers. Many noted Americans have been entertained at her private club, an old Tudor manor house, including the late Ambassador, Walter Hines Page and President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University.

Mrs. Martin is one of the world's pioneer woman suffragists. Born at Homer, Ohio, September 23, 1838, as a young girl she married Dr. Canisius Woodbury, by whom she had a son and daughter who now live with her. She was chosen by the Equal Rights Party to carry their presidential banner against Grant. Afterward she came to England and carried on her political propaganda. Eventually she married the late John W. Martin, the banker son of an old Worcester shire family. On his death in 1897 she inherited his entire estate.

Arraigned Monday

Special to Post-Crescent.
New London—Waupaca-co's sponge squad, led by Sheriff James O. Hanson, carrying a search warrant, descended upon a warehouse and filling station owned and operated by Louis
Block, Clintonville, at about noon
Thursday. The owner was absent, but about fifty gallons of alleged alcohol and gin were confiscated, as well as a large supply of bottles, labels and apparatus for mixing liquors. State Officers Sullivan, Fuller, Ehrsmeyer and Ostrom, together with Deputy Sheriff Harlow, Miller, assisted in the raid and helped move the load of paraphernalia to the county seat, where it will be used as evidence in the arraignment of Mr.
Block, which will take place on Monday.

Other raids on Thursday afternoon occurred at the saloons of two Embarass men, George Chrobowski and William Gruetzmacher. A quantity of alleged illicit liquor was found in both places. Both men also will be brought up for arraignment Monday.
The continuation of raids on Friday, the home of Ben Jablonski, town of Harrison farmer, was entered by the agents and a search of the house revealed a 10-gallon container, hidden in an upper room of the place, which was seized with its contents to be presented as evidence to the court.
According to Sheriff Hanson, Jablonski was not at home when search was made. Summons to appear on Monday in court were served upon him later.

A kitchen stove still, was found by the dry squad later in the afternoon at the home of Claude Rhode, town of Wyoming farmer, it was reported.
Rhode was in the yard chopping fuel
when the raiders entered the yard.
Five gallons of "necrotic" and the stove were taken to Waupaca.
Like the other four men, Rhode will be arraigned in county court on Monday.

United States Spends Millions Of Dollars To Ban
Liquor But Teaches Thousands Just How To Make It

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Certain congressmen have worked themselves into a lather of moral indignation because the government had operated a speakeasy to trap bootleggers.

But you ain't heard nothin' yet! The government for some time has been engaged in sending recipes and formulae to its citizens telling them how to make alcoholic beverages which the law forbids one to manufacture. It is teaching them by the tens, if not by the hundreds, of thousands.

JUST WRITE AND ASK
That is, while one branch of the government tries to enforce prohibition laws and puts horrid stuff into all the alcohol, two other branches are instructing householders in the most approved methods of making real pre-war stuff. These two branches are Congress, which receives requests for formulae, and the government printing office, which publishes all government documents and congressional speeches and cheerfully furnishes whatever is wanted.

Would you make your own rye or bourbon whiskey? Write to your congressman.

Would you like a few casks of Port, Claret or Burgundy in the cellar? Your congressman will be pleased to tell you how.

Would you experiment with lowly home brew? This formula, too, awaits your call.

HOME BREW

Here's how the system works: A letter recently came to a dry congressman from a constituent. It said: "Please tell me how to make home brew."

Constituents must be pleased. This congressman's conscientious secretary found the Department of Agriculture's Year Book for 1924. Pages 370-378 furnished complete processes for manufacture of all sorts of wines, from ordinary wines to angelicas and a couple of brandies.

Then she heard about Jan. 3 speech of Congressman E. Hull of Peoria, Ill., on the medicinal spirits bill. Hull formerly headed a big distillery in Peoria and is regarded sometimes as this country's foremost authority on the subject of medicinal spirits. He explained the process of making three grades of spirits, including rye, bourbon, malt, gin, brandies and others. This speech went into the Congressional Record and also is available in pamphlet form.

The congressman's secretary was not aware that the government could furnish a recipe for beer, but it can and does, thanks to Congressman Emanuel Celler of New York, who last year introduced into the Record George Washington's famous recipe for beer.

Thus, there are three publications with which any bootlegger can get up stock. There has been a big rush for all three.

GETS 10,000 REQUESTS

Congressman Hull's office has filled more than 10,000 requests for copies of his speech.

Congressman Celler's office has not kept track, but there was a big rush for the beer recipe in the months following the speech and the demand continues fairly brisk. There is still a good supply of both the Hull and Celler speeches and the government printing office is always ready to print more when asked.

Perhaps all this interest is merely academic. But it is a moral and interesting situation which finds the taxpayers contributing many millions annually to keep the nation dry and simultaneously paying printing and mailing costs for the dissemination of recipes for whiskey, wine, beer and hard cider.

FAIR AND COOL WEATHER
PROMISED FOR SUNDAY

A fair Sunday but cooler than Saturday is the forecast for tomorrow. The prediction is fair, followed by increasing cloudiness Saturday evening and Sunday; not quite so cool, possibly frost Saturday evening in the southeast portion.

Crops have been invented to hold tickets in the mouths of milk bottles.

BICYCLE RIDER STRUCK
BY CAR BUT IS UNHURT

George Thomas, 14 years old, 311 E. Washington-st., escaped injury Friday evening about 9:15 o'clock on E. Washington-st. in front of police headquarters when the bicycle he was riding was struck by an automobile coming out of the parking lot on that corner. The bicycle was damaged, but the rider was not hurt.

The driver of the automobile was Frank Stark, 217 N. Appleton-st. He was going out of the parking lot on to E. Washington-st. as the bicycle approached from the west. Neither saw the other approaching.

NEW MOVIES SHOW DEPTH

Moving pictures that show depth as well as height and breadth have appeared in Germany. The invention by two Germans does away with celluloid film, a copper band taking its place. On it the pictures are taken and developed in such a manner that a true perspective view of the scene is shown. The mechanical apparatus is as at present, but as the copper strip is not transparent, the image is reflected to the screen.

AMERICANS TO HAVE BANANAS

A plantation that will produce 4,000-60 bunches of bananas a year is to be developed by Americans in Panama. The project having just been approved by the Panamanian government. The plans include the cultivation of nearly 40,000 acres, construction of a railroad 40 miles long, a concrete wharf, oil storage tanks and employees' quarters and development of an elaborate irrigation system. More than $9,000,000 will be spent on the project.

ARMENIANS HAVE A
REAL NATIONAL HOME
AFTER MUCH ROAMING

Centuries of Wandering, Massacres and Oppressions Finally Ended

Erivan, Soviet Armenia.—(AP)—After hundreds of years of wandering, evictions, massacres and oppression, the Armenians at last have a real national home.

It is not the home they knew in medieval times when they were ruled by the sagacious and romantic Caliph Haroun-al-Rachid and enjoyed prosperity and a reasonable degree of self-government, but the Armenians have peace, security from attack and massacre by the Turks, freedom of worship, and opportunities for the development of their national aspirations and culture.

Soviet rule, if it has not brought prosperity and entire independence, has at least brought the Armenians a stable government, law, order, and protection from oppression by neighboring states.

The country, however, is still poor and undeveloped. The standard of life, gauged by American standards, is low. As in Biblical times, the peasants, who form 85 percent of Armenia's million souls, still live in primitive mud huts and subterranean shelters, managing barely to keep body and soul together with the slender product of their unfruitful, rocky and inhospitable land. The amoral oxcart, the wooden plough, the hand scythe and other obsolete agricultural implements are still in use.

The treeless, waterless part of Asia is strewn with basaltic stones, and hideous lava flows from numerous extinct volcanoes. It is only irrigation and the most careful handling of the arid soil that saves the people from starvation.

Everywhere the people are dressed in tatters. The children are shoeless, emaciated and impoverished. The women have become prematurely old, due to hard work, lack of proper nourishment and harrowing experiences at the hands of the Turks.

The troubled and tragic history of the people is reflected in their music and songs which are marred by melancholy. Even their dances are devoid of spirit or fervor.

With the aid of subsidies from the central government at Moscow the

MIXED MOVEMENTS
ON STOCK MARKET

Major Activity Appears Upward in Early Trading—Credit Is Easy

New York, (AP)—Price movements again lacked uniformity at the opening of Saturday's market. St. Louis Common crossed 116 to a new peak, despite reports of flood damage to its lines while St. Louis Route 1000, which had been sold at a low level, rose to 100. By Products closed 24 points higher, and United Fruit lost 3 points on the first sale.

Weekend business and trade reports disclosed further irregularity, which was reflected in the mixed movement of stock prices. Major ac-

Armenian government is building cotton mills, factories, hydro-electric plants, irrigation works and highways. Erivan, the capital, which lies within the shadow of Mount Ararat, is emerging from its oriental torpor and backwardness, and is taking on some of the aspects of a European metropolis. Many new government buildings, a modern hotel built on the American plan and several new theaters have been erected.

A powerful hydro-electric station, just completed, has dispelled the darkness and gloom that formerly enveloped the town. Illuminating it with a brilliance suggestive of an American city.

LADIES FIRST AT CAIRO FAIR

Feminism decided that men must wait at the Oriental Kermess given recently by society women of Cairo. The event was held at the Gezira Casino by the Dispensing and Working School, and the shadow of even admitted the first day, when an Arab orchestra and Omkassoum, a celebrated Egyptian singer, gave a concert. Men grasped the privilege of attending on the second day when a feature pageant showing Egyptian women at every epoch in history was given by high society leaders. The costumes donated by Princess Tousseun were rich in texture and color. Women in charge of booths wore magnificent costumes of their ancestors. The organization provides vocational training for poor girls.

livity appeared to be on the upslide, with the continued ease of credit conditions regarded as a dominating influence for the time being. Motor and Dupont also were under pressure in the early trading. Foreign exchange opened firm, with the dollar crossing 24 cents to the highest level since May, 1921. Demin Italian lire ruled around 4.8654 and French francs just above 2.31 cents.

EXPECT WISCONSIN OVERSUBSCRIBE IN MINISTERS' DRIVE

Campaign to Establish Presbyterian Pension Fund Starts This Week

Indications the past month point to over-subscription of the Wisconsin quota of $183,000 toward the $15,000,000 pension fund being raised nationally by the Presbyterian church for its old and disabled ministers, according to a statement issued by Will H. Hayes, national campaign chairman, through S. Frank Shattuck of Neenah, Wisconsin state chairman. The campaign in Wisconsin opened officially on Thursday. Campaigns in the five Presbyteries will be held during the next three weeks simultaneously with others in 14 states from Illinois to California.

Some 3,000 laymen, part of the 40,000 working through the west, will be active in Wisconsin campaigns. In each of the five Presbyteries an opening dinner, two report dinners and a final "victory dinner" have been scheduled at intervals of about one week. Winnebago Presbytery, which includes Appleton, had an opening event at Merrill on Wednesday and will have a second at Oshkosh on April 25. This Sunday service is held over several days. Thursday was designated as the official opening in this state.

Contributions are payable over five years and every dollar subscribed is 100 per cent effective because all campaign expenses have been underwritten by laymen, the statement by Mr. Hayes announced.

Nearly $10,000,000 of the $15,000,000 pension fund has been raised in the east, Mr. Hayes said. "I am certain that Wisconsin will do more than its share. That it will oversubscribe its quota of $183,000. The reports to me from your courageous leaders make this seem unquestionable," he continued.

"The church is divine in its Genesis and eternal in its Revelation, but its usefulness and indeed its survival are in the hands of administrators. Those administrators are human men and women. They are asking to serve not in heaven but on earth, not in paradise but in Milwaukee, Madison, Neenah and in the 10,000 towns where milk costs so much a quart, eggs, so much a dozen and meat so much a pound.

"There are those who still say 'The services the clergy render cannot be paid for and should not be measured in dollars and cents.' Fine, but also rank and file say: 'The clergyman saves souls but he cannot live on the souls he saves. We are expecting too much of human nature when we ask men to dedicate themselves and their families to present needs and future poverty.'

"The first phase of the whole problem and the one for immediate performance, the one most important now, is this provision for an adequate pension for our own Presbyterian ministers. There can be no failure."

GERMAN STUDENTS PUT ON TWO GERMAN PLAYS

Two German comedies will be presented by the German club of Lawrence college in the Sunday school auditorium of First Methodist church at 8 o'clock Monday evening. The plays will be "Der Prozess" by Benedix and "Als verlobte empfinden sich" by Wichert.

Walter Voecks of Appleton will carry one of the principal parts in "Der Prozess," that of Schulze, a landowner. The other leading character will be taken by Arthur Mueller of Wausau. Norman Knutzen of Appleton will play Lohmeier, a lawyer; other parts have been given to William Verhage of Sheboygan as Krupp, the prison warden; Leslie Westphal of Randolph, the night watchman; and Elmer Leavitt of Mercer, policeman.

The cast of the second play includes several girls. One Appleton student Kenneth Miles will play Franz von Grumbach, the nephew of the leading lady, Malvine, which is taken by Miss Edna Nies of Racine. The part of her mother Frau von Grumbach is played by Miss Sophie Haase of Waupun. Miss Gertrude Lanzer of Bloomer, will be Adelheid Hopfenguel, a governess; Bruno Krueger of Tomah will play Andreas Langerhans; and Miss Dorothea Holz of Seymour, will be a maid.

The plays are coached by Dr. C. C. Cast, professor of German at Lawrence college, and Miss Agnes Huberty, a senior student. The greater part of the proceeds from the plays will be given to the fund to send a Lawrence student to Europe.

NO FIGHTING HEART, BOXER OPENS STORE

College Athletic Star Unable to Show Viciousness in Prize Ring

Indianapolis, Ind.—You need a fighting heart and the viciousness that made Jack Dempsey famous to rate among the top notchers in the boxing world.

That explains why George Mulholland, former Butler athlete, is now operating a chain of women's hat stores here instead of boxing for a living—he lacked the heart and viciousness.

For four years, Mulholland was a football star at Butler. During those same four years, he boxed quite a bit in collegiate circles.

He had the build of a Tunny and the physique of an athlete, but as a result, he was crowned national A. U. U. junior lightweight champion before he was through as an amateur.

He was also a member of the 1924 Olympic team that Uncle Sam sent to Europe.

Like La Barba and a great many amateurs who later cashed in as professionals, Mulholland felt the need of big dough—especially since college expenses were piling up regardless of the size of his roll—and turned pro last December.

The beginning of his professional career was most successful. He chalked up victories against some of the best light heavies, despite his lack of experience.

He had everything. That is everything but the fighting heart that could have made him a great fighter.

He had the punch to rock 'em to sleep, but he never used it. He didn't have the heart. He was known for his sportsmanship, one sports writer said, and he never could reconcile himself to battering an opponent until he took the count.

Mulholland said he couldn't work under any man and that he had to get into a business of his own. Military shops have always run in his family, so it was not surprising to find him interested in that line.

Managing three women's hat stores is about all one fellow can worry about any way, and this enterprise of the youth who might have been a king in the boxing world is something quite different from any athlete's attempts in the business.

Dr. Henry L. Banzhaf, president of the American Dental association, will be a guest of honor at the meeting of the Fox River Valley Dental society at Oshkosh on May 17. Dr. Banzhaf is considered the foremost authority on dental education in the world. Several Appleton dentists are planning to attend the meeting.

Dr. Hart J. Goslee of Chicago, author of dental text books and a national figure in dentistry, will read a paper on Trend of Dental Education in Its Relation to Medicine. Col. W. H. G. Logan, oral surgeon and former president of the American Dental society, will read a paper on Cancer of the Mouth. Dr. Logan had charge of all the dentistry for the United States army during the World war.

BANK GETS CHECK FOR $90,000 TO SETTLE ITS CLAIM

First National Bank and First Trust Company Cases Are Closed

A check for $90,000 was drawn by E. L. William, city clerk, signed by Mayor A. C. Rule, and tendered to the First National bank Friday morning as settlement in full of the bank and the First Trust company claims against the city as a result of the recent decision of the supreme court in the bank stock tax case. The payment was authorized by the common council Wednesday night.

Records indicated that the two banks had protested payment of approximately $184,000 in the last six years, which with accrued interest would total more than $184,000. The city's settlement of $90,000 is a complete liquidation of the claim. The offer was made by the special council committee and was accepted by the banks subject to the common council's approval. Members of the special committee are Mayor Rule, City Attorney Bossert and Alderman George T. Richard.

The bank has agreed, according to Mayor Rule, that if the city runs short of funds before collection of the next tax levy, that it will negotiate loans to carry it over the period of shortage. The $90,000 was drawn from the general fund of about $300,000.

By settling the account at once the city avoids paying 6 per cent interest on the debt. The mayor pointed out that banks holding the city funds pay only 2 per cent interest.

School Term Ends

REMEMBER ALL LONDONS ARE NOT IN ENGLAND

More Londons than the one in England have postoffices, postal patrons have been told by the postoffice department. Articles in the mails intended for delivery in London, England, should include the district initial and number as well as the country. It was stated. For instance, "London, S. W. 7, England" was an example cited. Often articles come into the local office addressed to London without state or county named. There is a city London in Wisconsin and another in the west so that delays are often made in the deliveries.

In the case of articles for delivery in other parts of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the name of the county is an essential part of the address.

Excavation for new Catholic church and school under construction at the corner of N. Durkeest and E. Wisconsin-ave was completed this week. The church will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000 complete. The work is being done by the Appleton Construction company. It is to be completed by Nov. 1.

LEGION POST WILL SHOW PROFIT FROM BOWLING TOURNEY

More Than 5,000 Games Rolled During Meet, Secretary Reports

A report of the first annual bowling tournament of the Wisconsin department of the American legion, sponsored by Onor Johnston post, was made at the regular meeting of the post executive committee Thursday evening at Hotel Appleton by Walter Schultz, secretary of the meet. The tourney closed last week. Mr. Schultz reported that more than 5,000 games were rolled and that the post would receive a profit from the tournament. A committee was appointed to purchase rewards for the men who had so successfully handled the large tournament.

Plans for Memorial day were discussed and Commander Harvey Frieb was instructed to appoint a committee of five to plan the legion's part in the observance. The committee also will encourage a large turnout of post members and care for the decoration of graves of World war veterans.

C. O. Baetz, athletic officer, was officially instructed to enter a softball team in the City Softball league for the 1927 season.

Herman Peterson of Fond du Lac was an Appleton visitor Thursday.

1,115 CHILDREN IN SCHOOLS EXAMINED

Approximately 1,115 children in the grade schools have been examined by Appleton physicians in the health survey undertaken by the Outagamie Medical society, according to a report made by the school nurses who assist the doctors in the examinations. Schools which have been completed in the survey are the Lincoln, Franklin, Jefferson, Washington, and Sacred Heart.

The physicians work at the schools part of each school day. It was planned to have two members of the society examine each day. When the list has been completed, those examining first, start again. The nurses plan to complete the examinations by the time school closes in the spring.
